"LOCAL ROOTS. CITY REACH. AWARD-WINNING RESULTS!"

Concerns continue about proposed vehicle storage compound

By Jennifer McFee

The possibility of drainage issues, increased traffic and diminished property values are among the concerns of a pair of Teulon residents who are speaking out against a proposed vehicle storage compound.

Rockwood Wrecking and Recovery is seeking conditional use approval to set up a 190-foot by 100-foot vehicle storage compound area along Highway 7. The compound would be enclosed by a commercial-grade slatted chain link fence and would serve as a storage space for vehicles that the company picks up for Manitoba Public Insurance and for vehicle impoundment.

Debbie Kozyra of DRK Consulting represents two clients who are concerned about the proposed compound, which would be located next to their property.

"This proposal will not bring any more tax dollars to the town — you cannot tax a fence or vehicles. Currently taxes are being paid on the subject property and this will not increase with allowing Rockwood Wrecking to put a storage compound on the land," Kozyra wrote in a letter to Teulon council on behalf of her clients.

"This proposal will lower the property values of the adjoining residents. No one is going to purchase these homes with a wrecked car compound next door. Who is going to compensate the current residents for the loss of value on their homes and property?"

She also cited noise and nuisance as concerns to adjoining property owners, as well as an increased risk of accidents, traffic and congestion. Other concerns include front setbacks, potential increase in crime, lighting, environmental impacts and possible hazards of a fire on site.

In addition, Kozyra's clients are concerned about the close proximity of the proposed storage compound to their residence, which could lead visitors to believe that they're associated with the business. She said these concerns stem from a driveway on Highway 7 shared with the compound, which won't have staff working on site.

For her clients, another big concern centres on drainage.

"If you remember the rains of 2023, my clients' home was flooded when the culvert backed up on Highway 7 and 7th Avenue. This caused extensive damage to their home and property. No plans have been shown as to where the subject property will drain to. Most logical would be to drain to the ditch along Highway 7," Kozyra wrote to council.

"This could also pose a threat of another flood to my clients' home. There is no way to contain all spills in a compound with drop mats. Heavy rains will wash chemicals to the drainage system. It could also carry hazardous chemicals such as oil, gas and anti-freeze to Crescent Creek at the edge of town. This would be an environmental nightmare to the creek."

She believes the proposed vehicle storage compound would be better suited for an industrial park.

"This type of development is not what you want to see as you travel into Teulon, and it should be located in an area which has less traffic," she added. "This proposal will be a disturbance to the adjoining residences who have invested a lot of their hard-earned dollars into their properties and homes."

The applicant's letter of intent states that spill containment practices would be in place using spill kits and absorbent materials to prevent any potential leaks. The vehicles wouldn't be dismantled on the property, nor would they be stacked or put on racking. A maximum of 50 vehicles would be stored on site.

Shrubs and trees would line the north and west side, and the commercial-grade chain link fence with black slats would create a barrier from being able to see inside the compound.

The business would mainly operate from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday, with occasional after-hours access for employees only. Access to the compound would be by appointment only. Frequency of movement in and out of the compound would vary daily.

Rockwood Wrecking and Recovery declined to comment.

A public hearing took place on Tuesday, March 10. Teulon council will likely make a decision at their April 14 meeting.

Community honours Zach Hunter with memorial fundraiser

By Jo-Anne Procter

A fundraiser held in memory of Zach Hunter, who grew up in Stonewall, brought friends, family and community members together to honour the young man remembered for his kindness, humour and strength at the Rockwood Motor Inn on March 20.

The event marked what would have been Hunter's 21st birthday. He was diagnosed with bone and lung cancer while in Grade 12 and died in 2024 at age 19.

In his 19 years, he made a lasting impact as a son, brother, friend and teammate, and was known as a talented soccer player whose presence was felt both on and off the field.

"Zach was the kindest soul who would do anything for anyone," said organizer Nikki Mattson. "His sense of humour was impeccable — he always had everyone laughing."

"Krista (Edkins) and I wanted to do something to celebrate that milestone, something where his friends and family could come together, share memories and honour him," Mattson said.

Mattson and Krista Edkins watched Hunter grow up alongside their own children.

"It's so important to keep his memory alive and celebrate the person he was," she said.

For those involved, the cause is deeply personal.

"Everyone is touched by cancer — no one can escape it," Mattson said.

"I watched Zach grow up into an incredible, vibrant young person, and then watched his future be ripped away from him in an instant. He battled for two years with a smile, a sense of humour and incredible bravery. He deserves to be remembered and honoured."

A total of $3,008 was raised at the memorial. Owners of the Rock, Jason Manning and Monica Rodrigue, donated $2 from each drink sold that night and rounded $1,728 up to $2,000, while a donation bucket raised $1,008.

Funds raised will be donated to the Canadian Cancer Society, with a focus on osteosarcoma research, a rare and aggressive bone cancer that primarily affects teenagers and young adults. Donations can also be made to the Terry Fox Foundation.

Mattson said supporting cancer research and families affected by the disease is essential.

"No family should have to go through what his family has been through. We need to find a cure, and we need to continue to remember Zach."

Beyond fundraising, the event carried a broader message.

"Life is too short — eat the cake, take the trip and spend time with your loved ones," Mattson said. "And talk about the ones who are gone."

Bear cubs orphaned after illegal shooting near Balmoral

By Annaliese Meier

Three young black bear cubs are now in care after their mother was illegally shot near their winter den site, prompting outrage from a local wildlife rescue and renewed calls for public education and responsible behaviour around wildlife.

According to Manitoba Black Bear Rescue, the female bear — who was nursing three 10-week-old cubs — was killed near north of Balmoral in March. The loss left the cubs orphaned, distressed and entirely dependent on human intervention for survival.

“At this age, they would have no chance of surviving in the wild without their mother,” said Judy Stearns, owner of the rescue.

Cubs at just 10 weeks old rely completely on their mother for food, warmth and protection. They are still nursing and even require help to relieve themselves, making survival impossible without care.

Stearns said she first became aware of the situation through social media posts shared March 20 and 21, which included photos and the exact location of the den. The posts quickly spread, drawing increasing numbers of people to the site.

“That created a very dangerous situation,” she said.

According to the rescue, the den area saw a steady stream of vehicles, with people stopping to take photos, approaching the bears, making noise and even leaving food behind. Headlights were also reportedly shone on the animals at night.

Such activity can cause significant stress for wildlife and may lead to a mother bear abandoning her cubs, while also increasing the risk of bears becoming habituated to humans and vehicles.

“The biggest concern was that the location was shared publicly, including to anyone who might wish the bears harm — and, unfortunately, that’s what happened,” Stearns said.

The cubs arrived at the facility in otherwise good condition thanks to their mother’s care, although one had a laceration on a front leg that required sutures.

Since then, they have required intensive, around-the-clock care.

Feeding and toileting must be done every three hours, day and night. Because the cubs are still nursing, they must be fed using a syringe fitted Woodlands Park150 is in the running for a cash prize through an online competition — and they need your votes to make it a reality.

The local organization was chosen as a Manitoba finalist with the Growing Home with BASF Canada program. This national community giving program aims to celebrate and support organizations making a meaningful impact in rural Canada.

Each year, local growers and agricultural retailers across Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario are invited to nominate organizations that matter most in their communities for a chance to win a portion of the $160,000 prize fund. In each province, three prizes will be awarded: $25,000 for first place, $10,000 for second place and $5,000 for third place.

A grower or retailer in the area nominated Park150 for the initiative. Following a review process, Park150 was selected as one of the top three finalists in Manitoba.

Park150 is a community-led initiative that involves transforming abandoned rail land into the first public green space in the hamlet of Woodlands in celebration of the Rural Municipality of Woodlands' 150th anniversary in 2030.

The eco-historical park will feature accessible walking paths, a central gathering space, tall grass prairie restoration, edible gardens and honorary trees recognizing community volunteers and organizations. The project aims to reflect local history, environmental stewardship and inclusive design, ensuring meaningful access for residents and visitors of all ages and abilities.

On behalf of Park150, board president Bryan Myskiw expressed gratitude to the community member who submitted the nomination.

"Your nomination helped bring our story forward, and we are excited to have been selected as a finalist," he said.

"We hope residents and surrounding communities will take this opportunity to vote and show their support for this project and the lasting impact it will have."

Funding from the Growing Home program would help to advance Park150's accessible walking paths, central gathering space and tall grass prairie development. As a result, it would strengthen a project that is already bringing together youth, seniors, families, local businesses and volunteers.

Myskiw encourages residents across Manitoba and Canada to participate in the voting process and help bring this community project one step closer to realization.

Public voting is open March 31 to April 17. During this time, anyone in Canada can place one vote for an organization in each province for a total of four votes. A valid email address is required, and any duplicate or fraudulent votes won't be counted.

To vote, visit <https://agro.basf.ca/>

Provincial budget prioritizes jobs, lower costs, better health care: Sala

By Lorne Stelmach

The Manitoba government emphasized such things as good jobs, lower costs and better health care for Manitobans as it unveiled its 2026 budget last week.

Finance Minister Adrien Sala also particularly touted his belief that the budget positions rural and northern Manitoba for long term growth, safer communities and better health care.

He suggested the government is making responsible investments that align with Manitobans' priorities while making progress on the path to balance the budget within four years.

"Budget 2026 reflects the priorities we heard from Manitobans every day, strengthening health care, lowering costs and creating good jobs," said Sala. "We're delivering real progress with relief at the grocery store, more front-line staff in our health-care system and new opportunities for workers. This budget is about building a healthier, more affordable Manitoba for families."

Sala billed it as a budget that leaves no Manitoban behind. "For the third year in a row, our government is making historic investments outside of Winnipeg. This budget includes policies and projects for every region every region of the province, every town, every city and ever regional municipality.

"Each section of the budget contains policies and projects that will have a positive effect on rural, northern and remote families, whether it's for health care, public safety, infrastructure, affordability or agriculture, there's something positive for your community in this budget."

Some key highlights included investing more in health care for the third consecutive year, adding 4,054 net new health-care staff to the front lines and focusing on new initiatives to reduce the number of emergency rooms wait times.

Sala also suggested Manitoba is leading the country in tackling rising grocery prices through new legislation that would ban predatory pricing and restrict property controls. He said this budget goes further by removing the provincial sales tax from all food sold in grocery stores starting July 1. Additional measures to lower costs for Manitobans include an increase to $1,700 to the homeowners affordability tax credit, increased rent relief and free transit for children and youth.

The budget also builds on economic growth with a commitment to train 40 per cent more apprentices in the skilled trades and a new $10-million Churchill Catalyst Fund to attract more private-sector interest in an energy corridor that will create good jobs.

Sala further suggested the budget reflects the values of everyday Manitobans who want to see everyone succeed with progressive policies that give families with the lowest incomes the most help. This includes the change to the homeowners affordability tax credit to help Manitobans with the most give back to those with the least, new investments in free child care for low-income families, and a $2.5-million investment in adult literacy programs to help more Manitobans graduate and find a good job.

In reference to economic development, Sala touted a number of key investments in various infrastructure projects that will serve as catalysts for further growth.

"All across Manitoba, we're building, and we know that those investments in capital are going to not only help to ensure that Manitobans have the resources and infrastructure that we need to support our local economies, but it's also going to help put people to work."

In a press conference, Sala fielded a question about producers facing lower crop prices and higher input costs, and what the government was going to do to help farmers maintain their profitability beyond the usual supports and loan programs.

"I think we're doing the important work of making sure they have adequate access to those programs that we know will help our producers across the province," he said. "We know that producers are the backbone of the provincial economy, and we know that trade disruptions are creating increased risk and uncertainty, and I think it's critical our government is stepping up with more support to help producers."

The government is investing in the strength of rural and northern Manitoba, Sala emphasized.

"These communities deserve reliable infrastructure, good jobs and health care they can count on. Budget 2026 delivers real support to help families build a stronger future, close to home."

The budget raises municipal funding by close to $6 million, bringing total base support to $198 million by 2026-27, along with new commitments for water infrastructure, Northern Affairs communities, and the Manitoba Growth, Renewal and Opportunities for Municipalities (Manitoba GRO) program.

Sala also emphasized that they are aiming to improve rural and northern health care as a priority with several initiatives to continue the provincial commitment to improving the quality of health care in those areas.

While physician recruitment and retention are at an all-time high, according to Sala, the budget adds an

Provincial budget gets mixed reviews

By Lorne Stelmach

Manitoba's new provincial budget is drawing mixed reaction from opposition critics, labour leaders and economists.

Midland MLA and Progressive Conservative finance critic Lauren Stone said the budget falls short on affordability.

She pointed to rising education property taxes, noting Statistics Canada data shows Winnipeg homeowners saw nearly a 20 per cent increase between 2025 and 2026.

"When education property taxes ... are going up by hundreds and thousands of dollars, increasing the tax credit by only $100 and not until next year is a drop in the bucket," Stone said. "Manitoba families need affordability relief now."

Opposition leader Obby Khan echoed those concerns, saying the plan does not provide immediate relief for households struggling with rising costs.

The Progressive Conservatives are proposing to eliminate provincial income tax on the first $30,000 earned — a move they estimate would save individuals about $1,500 annually and families up to $3,070.

"That's real relief right now," Khan said. "It's higher paycheques every week."

Labour groups, however, highlighted several positive elements in the budget.

Manitoba Federation of Labour president Kevin Rebeck said investments in infrastructure projects and job creation are encouraging at a time of global economic uncertainty.

"It is encouraging to see the provincial government focused on creating good, family-supporting jobs here at home," he said.

Rebeck also pointed to expanded child-care spaces, increased wages for child-care workers and additional training opportunities as measures that could help more Manitobans enter and remain in the workforce.

He added that supports such as free transit for youth and assistance for low-income families could help ease cost-of-living pressures, though more work is needed to address staffing shortages and workplace safety concerns in the public sector.

Economic analysis suggests Manitoba's fiscal position may be comparatively stable.

Cynthia Leach, assistant chief economist at RBC, said the province is projecting one of the lowest deficit-to-GDP ratios among provinces and remains on a path toward balance. However, she cautioned that economic uncertainty and ongoing spending pressures could affect those projections.

"Spending pressures and the uncertain economic environment could erode planned fiscal balances," Leach said, adding the province will need to continue making room for growth-focused investments while monitoring its debt levels.

Living in the "After" of the Resurrection

Easter Sunday is a mountaintop moment — the celebration of Christ's victory over sin and death. But the days following Easter often feel strangely ordinary. The lilies wilt, the music quiets, and life resumes its familiar rhythm.

Yet in Scripture, the days after the resurrection are some of the most intimate, surprising, and transformative moments in the entire gospel story. The resurrection didn't end on Sunday.

The events after the resurrection show us that Jesus doesn't wait for holy days to reveal Himself—He steps into the middle of everyday life - to reshape ordinary lives.

Think of where the risen Christ appeared:

In a garden, where Mary mistook Him for a gardener.

On a road, where two discouraged disciples walked away from hope.

In a locked room, where fear had trapped His closest friends.

On a shoreline, where tired fishermen were simply trying to make breakfast.

These scenes remind us that resurrection life is not loud or dramatic most of the time - It is quiet, steady, and deeply personal. It meets us in commutes, conversations, chores, and moments of uncertainty.

A short passage to sit with - "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, I am sending you." — John 20:21

Three movements to reflect on:

Peace — The first word of the risen Jesus is not correction or instruction but peace. It is the peace that steadies anxious hearts, softens weary minds, and reminds us that God is not distant. This peace is not the absence of trouble but the presence of Christ in trouble.

Presence — Jesus appears in the very places His followers feel least prepared to meet Him. He does not wait for them to be brave, faithful, or spiritually "ready." The resurrection means that Christ steps into your real life—your schedule, your stress, your questions—and brings His presence there.

Purpose — "As the Father has sent me, I am sending you." Easter is not only a celebration of what Jesus accomplished; it is a commissioning. You are sent into your daily world, your home, workplace, friendships, and communities as a carrier of resurrection hope. Not with perfection, but with willingness.

"And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age." — Matthew 28:20

Local students excel at French public-speaking competition

By Jennifer McFee

Félicitations!

Interlake School Division students recently showcased their skills en français in Canada's largest French-language public-speaking competition. École Stonewall Centennial School hosted the Concours d'art oratoire event on March 18.

Canadian Parents for French, a national organization committed to advocating for French language learning across Canada, puts on the event each year. In 2025, they celebrated their 40th anniversary with participation from more than 4,700 students participating.

"Students prepare and deliver a speech in French on a topic of their choosing," said learning support teacher Zach Ward. "They are guided throughout the process by their teachers to plan, write, edit and practise their speech."

In the Interlake School Division, French immersion students attend École RW Bobby Bend School, École Stonewall Centennial School and Collège Stonewall Collegiate. Each school prepares for the event in a different way.

"Some schools have students prepare in their French or Français classes. Some schools run clubs outside of class for interested students. The students decide on a topic, brainstorm ideas, conduct research, write, edit, revise and memorize their speeches," Ward said.

"Depending on grade level, the speeches are two to five minutes in length. Students can choose their own topics, so we always learn about some interesting things. This year we had topics on ducks, women in sports, quantum theory, Garfield and everything in between."

For Ward, one of the main benefits of the event is that it offers a chance to celebrate students who are learning a second language.

"The goal of the French immersion program in Manitoba is to develop proud, confident, engaged, plurilingual global citizens," he said.

"Events like this go a long way in providing that sense of pride and confidence in our immersion students. To stand in front of a room of mostly strangers and deliver a speech in a second language takes a lot of courage."

Concours d'art oratoire provides opportunities for students to challenge themselves and see successful results.

"Working through the writing process, from idea to finished product, builds resilience and confidence in these students," he said. "Making mistakes, learning from them to make a better product is a lesson that will benefit all of them in their lives."

This year, a total of 36 students from grades 4 to 10 participated in the divisional competition, with 15 from Ecole RW Bobby Bend School, 19 from Ecole Stonewall Centennial School and two from Collège Stonewall Collegiate. Most are French immersion students, and six non-immersion students also participated through their French Communication and Culture course.

four judges chooses the event winners.

"Typically, judges are teachers and former French immersion students who are committed to events like this that grow a love for French learning in our community," he said. "We have also had French-speaking community members serve as judges as well."

This year, Interlake School Division had winners in nine categories: Kaleah Wutzke (Grade 4 French: Communication and Culture), Gracie Bergen (Grade 4 French immersion), Katie Marohn (Grade 5/6 French immersion), Vanya Dubreuil and Lianne Biernes (Grade 7/8 French: Communication and Culture), Melodie Versavel (Grade 7/8 French immersion), Véronique Couture (Grade 7/8 Français), Deshawn Peever (Grade 9/10 French immersion) and Gabrielle Couture (Grade 9/10 Français).

Based on their achievements, these winners will progress to the provincial Concours d'art oratoire, which will take place in early May at L'Université de Saint-Boniface. During this phase, they'll present their speeches again in the competition against division winners from across the province.

Events like this only happen thanks to the efforts of people who are passionate and French language learning, Ward added. École Stonewall Centennial School hosted the event this year, and Ecole RW Bobby Bend has also held it for many years in the past.

"It takes efforts of teachers, judges, parents and families and, of course, the students to make this happen," he said.

"We were happy to have a night to celebrate all these people and especially the brave students who stepped up to the challenge and delivered amazing speeches in French on many interesting topics. Thanks to everyone who came out to support this event and everyone who worked hard to make it happen."

with a special nipple — a process that can be difficult as the animals are frightened, disoriented and crying for their mother. Each feeding session can take up to an hour.

“The physical and mental exhaustion is one of the biggest challenges,” Stearns said, noting the constant concern for the cubs’ well-being.

Despite the demanding work, she said rehabilitation programs like theirs have proven successful. Manitoba Black Bear Rescue has rehabilitated and released more than 100 bears.

Cubs typically remain in care until the fall, when they are released back into the wild in time to den for the winter. Those that arrive later in the year may overwinter at the facility and be released the following summer as yearlings.

Stearns emphasized that incidents like this are preventable, pointing to the need for better public understanding of black bear behaviour.

“There are many misconceptions about the threat black bears pose,” she said.

Data from Manitoba’s Wildlife Damage Compensation Program shows black bears account for only a small fraction of livestock predation. Of roughly 1,900 annual claims, about 75 per cent are attributed to coyotes and 20 per cent to wolves, with black bears, cougars and foxes making up the remaining five per cent.

Research also shows that mother black bears are highly unlikely to attack humans in defence of their cubs. While they may bluff charge or vocalize, they typically retreat or encourage their cubs to climb trees rather than engage.

Still, Stearns said misinformation continues to fuel unnecessary fear and harmful actions.

“AT THIS AGE, THEY WOULD HAVE NO CHANCE OF SURVIVING IN THE WILD WITHOUT THEIR MOTHER.”

additional $6.3 million to recruit more doctors to Manitoba, and it also provides funding for new training pathways for nurses, paramedics and internationally trained physicians. Major capital projects include the construction or expansion of a number of hospitals, including Boundary Trails Health Centre in Morden-Winkler.

And for agricultural producers, Sala noted the budget will freeze crown land leases for the third year in a row, and producers will also benefit from the continuation of both the 50 per cent school tax rebate for farm properties and the farmland school tax rebate.

ADDITIONAL FUNDING INCLUDES:

- $45.6 million for AgriStability to help Manitoba producers manage the risks of changing weather and markets.
- $71.8 million for AgriInsurance to lower premiums and protect producers against crop production shortfalls caused by natural perils.

- $18.5 million for AgriInvest to help producers manage minor income fluctuations.

- $7.8 million for the wildlife damage compensation program to expand eligibility for claims on agricultural losses from predatory wildlife.

And to encourage young Manitobans to enter the agriculture sector, the government increases the cap on the young farmers rebate and the lifetime maximum rebate rises.

Sala also touted what he called record investment in rural and northern infrastructure ranging from twinning of the Trans-Canada Highway to Ontario to rebuilding Highway 2 in southwest Manitoba.

A federal-provincial investment in 2025 of $76.9 million in water and wastewater capacity across rural Manitoba will include 22 million for the Pembina Valley Water Co-op capital plan and $4.4 million for the Morden-Winkler sewer line as well as other wastewater capacity projects totalling $28.5 million.

“We’ve received cubs from at least six similar incidents where a female bear was illegally shot, leaving cubs orphaned,” she said.

In Manitoba, it is illegal to kill a female black bear with cubs. Violations can result in fines, equipment seizures and possible licence suspensions, with investigations handled by conservation officers.

In Manitoba, it is illegal to kill a female bear with cubs, though enforcement and broader protections fall under provincial authorities.

Stearns is urging the public to take simple precautions to coexist with wildlife, particularly in bear country.

Residents are encouraged to remove bird feeders from April through November, secure garbage and other food attractants, and consider electric fencing for gardens or fruit trees. When encountering a bear, people should calmly leave the area and avoid approaching dens, keeping pets away as well.

Her strongest message, however, is about responsibility in the digital age.

“Please do not share the location of vulnerable wildlife publicly,” she said. “Take the time to verify information before posting. Misinformation and exposure can have very real and harmful consequences.”

As the three cubs continue their recovery, Stearns hopes their story will serve as both a warning and a learning opportunity.

“This bear didn’t deserve to lose her life,” she said. “And her cubs deserved the chance to stay with their mother in the wild.”

Gimli RCMP recover stolen property, charge Rockwood man

By Haley Cvar

A months-long investigation into a series of thefts and break-ins across the Interlake has led to the recovery of a significant amount of stolen property and the arrest of a suspect.

Gimli RCMP say officers began receiving reports in recent months of thefts and break and enters at businesses and private properties in Arborg, the RM of Armstrong and the RM of Rockwood.

Police identified a suspect through the investigation and obtained a search warrant for a property in the RM of Rockwood. Officers executed the warrant on March 30.

Among the items recovered was a tractor reported stolen from a private property in the RM of Armstrong on Nov. 28, 2025. Investigators also seized fish finders, LiveScope monitors and an insulated monosuit connected to a break and enter at a Main Street business in Arborg on Jan. 23.

Police say additional recovered property includes seven chainsaws, two blowers and two generators taken from a business on Ardal Street in Arborg on March 15, as well as a tractor stolen from a Highway 68 business on March 14.

RCMP say other items believed to be stolen — including tools and various ATV accessories — were also seized. Investigators are working to identify their owners.

Jesse Paluk, 30, of the RM of Rockwood, has been charged with three counts of break and enter, five counts of possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000, one count of possession of property obtained by crime under $5,000, improper storage of a firearm, possession of a non-restricted firearm while prohibited, and two counts of possession of a firearm without a licence. Paluk has been remanded in custody. Gimli RCMP continue to investigation.

tive and a little more enjoyable.

On Saturday, April 11, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Stonewall Family Foods is dedicating an evening to gluten-free living, with free samples, store-exclusive deals and opportunities to engage with the Canadian Celiac Association (CCA), whose representatives will be available to answer questions about living gluten free.

Stonewall Family Foods owner Kristle Snell said the evening is an opportunity to highlight the array of gluten-free products the store has to offer, helping customers find safe and tasty items.

"We like to think of ourselves as helpful for everyone," she added. "We see the importance of helping these individuals who have to alter their whole lives to avoid gluten—it's a very big thing to take on."

Balmoral resident Kristin McMahan has been eating gluten free for two years after her daughter, Liv, was diagnosed with celiac disease when she was two. She does 90 per cent of her grocery shopping at Stonewall Family Foods because of its gluten-free product availability.

"It's heartwarming, to be honest, that a small local store would go out of their way to provide options for us," she said.

Her mother, who underwent genetic testing after Liv's diagnosis, was also diagnosed with celiac disease, although she was asymptomatic, unlike Liv.

Celiac disease is an autoimmune disorder, which means the body attacks itself when exposed to gluten, which can be found in barley, rye, oats and wheat. Symptoms vary from person to person and can include gastrointestinal issues such as nausea and vomiting, as well as non-gastrointestinal symptoms like skin rashes, malaise, brain fog and headaches.

McMahon explained that celiac disease differs from gluten sensitivity because celiac disease attacks and harms the small intestine, potentially leading to other medical complications, including cancer. Gluten sensitivity, meanwhile, causes symptoms when gluten is consumed, but the body is not attacking itself.

McMahon said the hardest part about gluten-free living is the cost.

"Most products that are gluten free range from 300 to 700 per cent more expensive than the gluten-containing products—it's so darn expensive," she said. "There haven't been any medications found to help the autoimmune effects of celiac disease, so food is literally their medicine. We have to spend the extra money."

She added that government subsidies are available to help with costs, but many people either do not qualify or do not go through the effort of calculating the price difference between gluten-containing and gluten-free items.

However, the CCA is actively working with members of parliament, pushing for $1,000 to be provided annually to those diagnosed with celiac disease to assist with food costs.

Another challenge is education and advocacy.

"There are so many rules and tricks/tips to learn when first diagnosed," McMahon added. "It's crazy that gluten is in so many products that you would never think — sauces, dressings, spices — and learning about cross-contamination because a crumb is enough to cause an autoimmune reaction."

Because of this, she explained shopping takes longer than average because she often has to read every single label, whether she has purchased the item before or not, since production methods and ingredients can change all the time. She said having a dedicated gluten-free shopping night can make a world of difference for families.

"Family Foods makes the effort to provide gluten-free foods and to educate people on the importance of providing these products. So, we support them. It's so great to have a local store provide something that others would say is a niche."

She is excited to explore new products, find some good deals and meet other rural residents living gluten free— something that can also be a challenge, as the farther away you shop from Winnipeg, the harder gluten-free products are to come by.

"Having an event like this is absolutely amazing. It benefits everyone when we learn information that can help others," she said. "The general ability of a local store to provide gluten-free products helps our family, but it also helps our family and friends. Everyone wants to know how they can provide food that is safe for Liv. Even her friends make sure that they don't cross-contaminate her food, or they double check if Liv can have a treat—and they are four. We are really lucky that we have so many people who are close to us and genuinely care and want to educate themselves."

Snell said they have seen a growing demand for gluten-free products, whether it is for personal choice, a sensitivity or celiac disease.

She said staff do their best to avoid cross-contamination, ensuring machines are properly cleaned and sanitized before preparing dedicated gluten-free items.

She encourages anyone interested in a gluten-free lifestyle to come and explore the store's array of options.

"We and the Canadian Celiac Association are here for you, so come and see what it's about," she added.

Understanding the disability tax credit:

For individuals living with a disability — and the families who support them — the Disability Tax Credit (DTC) can provide meaningful financial relief. Yet many eligible Canadians either aren't aware of the program or are unsure how to apply.

The Disability Tax Credit is a non-refundable tax credit designed to reduce the amount of income tax owed by individuals who have a prolonged physical or mental impairment. In some cases, it can also be transferred to a supporting family member if the individual does not need the full credit.

Eligibility is based on the effects of the impairment, not the diagnosis itself. To qualify, a medical practitioner must certify that the condition is severe and prolonged, meaning it has lasted — or is expected to last — at least 12 months and significantly restricts the individual's ability to perform basic activities of daily living.

These activities can include walking, dressing, feeding oneself, or mental functions necessary for everyday life. In some cases, individuals who require life-sustaining therapy several times per week may also qualify.

Applying for the DTC involves completing Form T2201, the Disability Tax Credit Certificate. Part of the form is filled out by the applicant or their representative, while a qualified medical professional must complete and certify the medical portion. Once submitted, the Canada Revenue Agency reviews the application and determines eligibility.

If approved, the credit can often be applied retroactively for previous tax years, which may result in a refund. This can provide significant financial support, particularly for families managing ongoing medical or care-related expenses.

In addition to reducing taxes, DTC eligibility can open the door to other important programs. These may include the Registered Disability Savings Plan (RDSP), the Child Disability Benefit and other federal or provincial supports.

Despite its value, the application process can feel overwhelming. Understanding the criteria, ensuring the form is completed correctly and providing appropriate medical details are all critical steps.

That's why many individuals and families choose to seek guidance when applying. Having support through the process can help avoid delays and improve the chances of a successful application.

The Disability Tax Credit is more than a line on a tax return — it's a support system designed to recognize the additional challenges many Canadians face every day.

Taking the time to explore eligibility and apply can make a meaningful difference, both now and in the years ahead.

You may be eligible if:

You have a physical or mental impairment that has lasted (or is expected to last) 12 months or more; Your condition significantly restricts your ability to perform basic daily activities (such as walking, dressing, eating or mental functions); You require life-sustaining therapy several times per week; A qualified medical practitioner can certify your condition; You or a supporting family member pay income tax

Good to know:

The credit can often be claimed retroactively for previous years; Unused amounts may be transferred to a spouse or caregiver; Approval may open access to other programs like the RDSP

Rockwood's Peter Derksen takes on 4,625-kilometre trek to support Ukraine

By E. Antonio

Rockwood resident Peter Derksen has set out on a remarkable journey — hiking more than 4,600 kilometres from Mexico to Canada — to raise funds and awareness for soldiers fighting in Ukraine.

The retired police officer officially began his six-month trek along the Pacific Crest Trail in April, carrying everything he needs on his back and taking on the challenge completely unsupported. For Derksen, the journey is about far more than endurance — it's about continuing a mission that began years ago.

"I was born into freedom and I don't take it for granted," he said. "We are privileged and have worked for this. We have to cherish what we have and fight for those who don't. It's a foundation of being human."

Derksen's connection to Ukraine is deeply personal. In 2022, following a 35-year career with the Winnipeg Police Service, the military and Manitoba Justice, he travelled overseas and spent a year supporting efforts on the ground. During that time, he delivered more than 900 kilograms of aid — much of it donated by members of the Winnipeg Police Service — to soldiers in need.

Now, three years later, he is continuing that commitment in a different way.

"I have always been driven by making a difference through the service of others," he said. "Through my three careers, helping serve others was always there, and I want to continue to do that now."

Rather than returning to the front lines, Derksen chose to fundraise. Through his hike, he is collecting donations for the Canada-Ukraine Foundation through his personal fundraising page, with all proceeds going directly toward supporting Ukraine. He is also matching the first $2,000 raised over the course of the journey.

The Pacific Crest Trail stretches from the U.S.-Mexico border to British Columbia, taking hikers through some of North America's most challenging terrain, including the deserts of California, the Sierra Nevada mountains and the rugged Cascades of Washington. The trek begins with hikers touching Mexican sand through the fence at the U.S.-Mexico border before heading north.

While thousands attempt the trail each year, far fewer complete it, with more people successfully summiting Mount Everest. For Derksen, reaching the Canadian border will represent more than a physical accomplishment — it will symbolize meaningful support for a cause he believes in.

This level of endurance hiking is new territory for him. His previous experience includes completing the 70-kilometre Mantario Trail, but the Pacific Crest Trail presents a far greater challenge.

To prepare, Derksen spent months training through Manitoba's winter, hiking daily in temperatures as low as -20 C. Much of that training took place near Rockwood, where he repeatedly climbed Pikes Peak for hours at a time while carrying a roughly 40-pound pack. His dog, Bella — who will stay at home with loved ones — often joined Derksen during his training sessions and was "no doubt confused" about why they were walking the same path so many times.

Other training included strength building and stretching to develop the resilience needed for the journey.

Even with that preparation, the trail presents extreme and unpredictable conditions. He began his hike during a California heat wave, with temperatures climbing above 38 C. After crossing roughly 700 miles of desert, Derksen will return to cold and snowy conditions, including tackling Mount Whitney — the highest mountain in the contiguous United States. He said the drastic change in conditions will be a "complete shock" to his body.

"I will either be a dried-out prune or I will be a well-established desert traveller," he said. "Either way, I will have lost my skills to travel in the snow."

Other challenges he is preparing to face include wildlife encounters, staying on the trail, reaching towns to replenish supplies and the general dangers of remote hiking — something easier said than done, with risks such as fast-moving mountain streams, steep terrain and extreme weather. But Derksen said these risks are worth taking.

Derksen served with the armed forces in Ukraine in 2022.

"It's a lot safer than going back to Ukraine and fighting in the military," he said. "As an outdoorsman, I have the skills to prepare me for the wilderness. Now it is time for me to use them."

Throughout the journey, he plans to share updates through a blog, allowing supporters back home to follow along and stay connected to the cause.

For Derksen, staying motivated comes down to perspective.

"There are soldiers still fighting for the land their parents were born on," he said. "I have the ability to support their people and their right to be free, and I will — I have to open up the door to have a success at making a difference."

He hopes his efforts will inspire others to act in their own way.

"Wherever, whoever and whatever you are, time is limited, so the best opportunity is now. See you all soon — ish."

Updates on Derksen's journey will be posted at www.thetrek.co/author/peter-derksen/. Donations can be made at <http://weblink.donorperfect.com/HikeForUkraine>, with tax receipts available for Canadians.

Trail upgrades set to transform Warren pathway network

By Jennifer McFee

It's happy trails in Warren where a trail project aims to enhance the community.

Council approved a $91,717.50 quote from Spruce Acres Landscaping for the Invicta Trail project design, which was submitted by the Warren Communities in Bloom committee.

"The Invicta Trail project aims to improve an undeveloped trail in the Local Urban District of Warren into an accessible pedestrian pathway that connects Invicta Street to Road 4W," said chief executive officer Kaitlyn Griffith.

"It will feature a crushed limestone walkway, a pedestrian bridge, tree plantings and benches. This collaborative initiative between the Warren Communities in Bloom committee, the Local Urban District of Warren committee and the municipality is Phase 1 of what we hope will be a larger pathway network in Warren."

The funds will come from Communities in Bloom, the LUD of Warren service plan and the municipality's community enhancement grant.

IN OTHER COUNCIL NEWS:

- Council gave first reading to a bylaw to levy taxes for 2026. If the proposed financial plan is approved, the at-large mill rate will increase by 5.3 per cent, the rural mill rate will increase by 1.55 per cent and the LUD of Warren mill rate will increase by 6.91 per cent.

"Under the proposed 2026 financial plan, the municipality will continue its focus on gravel road repairs and enhancement along with improved capital planning for the fire department and public works," Griffith said.

"Warren, Woodlands and the rural area will all see some road or street improvements, and we hope to break ground on our long-awaited regional water project."

The proposed financial plan includes funding for the Good Street and Broadfoot Avenue reconstruction project as well as the Hanlan Street paving project. The public hearing for the financial plan will be held at the RM office on April 16 at 6:30 p.m.

- Council authorized the building and development officer to attend the 2026 Manitoba Planning Conference in Winnipeg from May 6 to 8 at a cost of $595 plus tax.

- The RM identified that Twin Lakes Beach Road South encroaches on several privately owned properties. Most of the property owners have agreed to sell the impacted portions of land to the municipality. Council approved a $119,238.17 payment to the impacted landowners as compensation for the land acquired to widen the road. The funds will come from the capital levies reserve.

- Council approved $1,000 in funding from the Rosser-Woodlands Recreation Commission to Warren Tiny Tots for recreation programming. The funds are being held in the recreation reserve fund.

- Council received a request for compensation for damage to a residential fence caused by municipal snow removal equipment. Council agreed to pay some damages in the amount of $500.

- Council unanimously passed third reading to a bylaw to designate a number for each lot in the Twin Lakes Beach Road South area and the surrounding settled area.

- Council gave first and second readings to a bylaw that focuses on campaign expenses and contributions for municipal elections. Council also gave first and second reading to a bylaw regarding the use of municipal resources in an election.

- Council gave second and third readings of a bylaw to amend the animal control bylaw.

"The municipality's animal control bylaw granted authority to the former Rockwood-Woodlands By-law Enforcement / Animal Control Board rather than council. As that board no longer exists, the amendment was required to shift control back to council," Griffith said.

"The amendment also removed some clauses which had been included but could not be acted upon. Council and administration are currently working on developing a new animal control bylaw that aligns with our current structure."

- The April 21 committee of the whole meeting has been rescheduled to April 28 due to the Association of Manitoba Municipalities conference.

- Council temporarily appointed CAO Kaitlyn Griffith as the bylaw enforcement officer until the position is filled.

- Council is authorized to attend the Interlake Community Foundation's donor appreciation evening at the Stonewall Curling Club on April 9 from 7 to 9 p.m.

- Council gave third reading to a bylaw to amend the development plan bylaw to redesignate a portion of land from agricultural area to rural residential.

"This development plan amendment was applied for by a resident who wishes to develop his farm property southeast of Warren into several rural residential lots," Griffith said "A plan of subdivision, or more development details, have not yet been presented."

Coun. Bryan Myskiw voted against the resolution, and Reeve Douglas Oliver and Coun. Darrell Sinclair were absent from the vote.

- Council gave second and third reading to a bylaw to regulate parking on municipal streets and cul-de-sacs within the Local Urban District of Warren. In addition, council gave second and third reading to a bylaw to regulate the parking of trailers, semi-trailers, semi-trailer truck trailers and semi-trailer truck tractors in the municipality. The parking bylaws aim to improve street traffic in Warren by restricting the parking of vehicles on some of the narrower streets and turnarounds, along with restricting the street parking of larger vehicles like semis or trailers.

- Council authorized a $4,000 payment to Napier Consulting for emergency management consultation services from April 1, 2026, to March 31, 2027.

- Council approved an application to subdivide a 150.36-acre property to create two 75.18-acre properties.

- Council authorized a $500 donation to Warren Collegiate Institute to support their Manitoba High School Athletic Association provincial AA girls basketball championship.

- The RM is buying a $340 ad in the 18th Annual Military Service Recognition Book.

- Council approved a $995 community sponsorship package in the Stonewall Teulon Tribune to acknowledge various events and special days throughout the year.

- Council authorized five members of council, the CAO and three public works staff to attend the Association of Manitoba Municipalities spring convention in Brandon from April 21 to 23 at a cost of $472.50 per registrant plus $65 per banquet ticket.

- Council authorized Deputy Reeve Lorna Broadfoot to attend the Federation of Canadian Municipalities annual conference in Edmonton from June 4 to 7 at a cost of $1,195 plus tax, travel expenses and accommodation.

- The RM has set the 2026 dust control at a rate of $330 plus tax for a 16-foot by 300-foot area. Council accepted a quote from Fort Distributors for 40 cents per litre. The deadline to apply is May 15.

- Council authorized the payment of the 2026 membership fee to Red River Basin Commission.

Teulon strengthens bylaw enforcement with new agreements

By Jennifer McFee

The Town of Teulon will have some assistance with bylaw enforcement when needed.

Teulon's CAO signed a bylaw enforcement services agreement with the RM of Rockwood. Rockwood will provide personnel to perform bylaw enforcement services, not including animal control services, in Teulon for a term that will end on Jan. 1, 2027.

The CAO also signed a bylaw enforcement services agreement with the Canadian Corp of Commissionaires to provide bylaw enforcement on an as-needed basis, including animal control services, from April 1, 2026, to March 31, 2027.

"The Town of Teulon staff are taking on the basic bylaw enforcement tasks for 2026," said CAO Chris Yuen. "We have signed agreements to use the RM of Rockwood and Commissionaires for non-basic bylaw enforcement on an as-need basis."

IN OTHER COUNCIL NEWS:

- Council approved a $10,090 quote from Barco Products Canada for four double-sided message centre signs. The signs are resistant to weather, bugs, UV and moisture.

"The four double-sided message centre signs will have one side of the sign containing an updated map of the trail system," Yuen said. "The signs could be ready by middle of May."

- Council submitted a grant application to Manitoba Water Services Board for technical and financial assistance for a phased CCTV inspection and cleaning of wastewater sewer mains and the rehabilitation of a manhole.

- Council approved Teulon's participation in AlertMB, Manitoba's public alerting system. CAO Chris Yuen will be the authorized call-in issuer after he completes training and other requirements.

"AlertMB issues alerts using the National Public Alerting System, more commonly known as Alert Ready," Yuen said. "The Alert app should be ready to be downloaded from the android or Apple app store in the next week or two."

Alerts issued through AlertMB differ from other mass notification systems since they are not an opt-in or subscription-based system. Instead, alerts are broadcast without prior registration. Critical emergency alerts also interrupt radio, television and digital displays to deliver urgent messages, which ensures widespread and immediate notification.

- Mayor Todd Campbell and CAO Yuen are authorized to attend the Association of Manitoba Municipalities' mayor, reeves and CAO meeting in Brandon on April 21. Expenses will be paid. The mayor, CAO and council are authorized to attend the AMM conference from April 21 to 23 with expenses paid.

Town of Stonewall 2025 water report now available

By Jennifer McFee

The Town of Stonewall's 2025 water report is now available.

All Manitoba communities with more than 1,000 people must produce an annual report on their water systems.

"The water report is an annual provincial requirement for all publicly operated systems," said chief administrative officer Wally Melnyk. "It ensures users have access to information on operation and compliance with testing requirements."

In 2025, two boil water advisories were issued due to water line breaks that caused pressure loss, along with one advisory related to scheduled maintenance.

About $70,000 was allocated last year for engineering and consulting work toward a new water treatment plant aimed at reducing water hardness. Tendering and construction are expected in late spring to early summer 2026, with commissioning targeted for early 2028.

Water and sewer rates increased slightly in 2025 to $1.95 per cubic metre, up from $1.89.

The full report is available at stonewall.ca.

In other council news:

- Outdoor rinks and ponds are now closed due to unsafe ice conditions.

- Council gave second and third readings to by-laws establishing a public cemetery and regulating traffic. Mayor Sandra Smith was absent from both votes.

"There has been a change in the operational protocol for the digging of graves," Melnyk said, noting the town will now arrange all burials at the Stonewall cemetery.

He added updates to the traffic by-law reflect ongoing review following its 2024 overhaul, including expanded parking on both sides of a portion of 1st Street E.

THE TOWN APPROVED A RANGE OF EXPENDITURES AND INITIATIVES, INCLUDING:

- $333,348.75 contract with Bituminex Paving Ltd. for reconstruction of 4th Street West;
- $98,552.50 to Ellmar Construction Inc. for concrete work on the Kinsmen Lake boardwalk project;
- $32,940 to WSP Canada Inc. for a lagoon capacity assessment;
- IT services through Epic and hardware purchases totalling more than $56,000;
- $7,599.81 for computer monitors through CDW Canada.

COUNCIL ALSO APPROVED:

- A $1,250 membership in the Long Term Continuing Care Association of Manitoba;
- A $455 quarter-page ad in the Royal Canadian Legion service recognition book;
- Attendance at the Federation of Canadian Municipalities conference (June 4-7 in Edmonton) and the Association of Manitoba Municipalities convention (April 21-23 in Brandon).
- Phase 1 of the Save the Kilns project has been completed, with design and tendering underway for Phase 2. Council approved transferring $171,495.65 from trust funds to cover part of the $526,433.45 spent in 2025.

ADDITIONAL COMMUNITY INITIATIVES INCLUDE:

- Lighting town signs purple on March 26 for epilepsy awareness;
- Hosting an emergency preparedness open house May 4 to launch Emergency Preparedness Week;
- The new "Spring in Stonewall" event on May 29, featuring Market on Main, family activities and local vendors.

Terry Fox Run campaign set to begin April 12 in Stonewall

By Lana Meier

The 2026 Terry Fox Run campaign will officially get underway on April 12, marking 46 years since Terry Fox began his Marathon of Hope in St. John's, N.L., to raise funds for cancer research.

To mark the launch locally, the Town of Stonewall will raise the Terry Fox flag on April 10. The flag will remain flying on April 12 for the official start of this year's campaign. A specific time for the flag raising has not yet been confirmed, but details will be shared on the town sign outside the municipal office, at the entrance to town and on the Stonewall Terry Fox Run Facebook page once finalized.

This year's Stonewall Terry Fox Run is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 20 at Stonewall Quarry Park. Registration will begin at 12 p.m., followed by the run and walk at 1 p.m.

Participants will be able to register or make donations online starting April 12 through the official Terry Fox Run website. Organizers encourage residents to check the site on launch day, as matching donation incentives are often available.

Community support will again play a key role in fundraising efforts. The Stonewall Kinettes are returning with their "Walk with Kin in May" initiative, inviting participants to walk a total of 100 kilometres throughout the month. More information can be found on the Stonewall Terry Fox Run and Stonewall Kinettes Facebook pages.

Organizers say they are grateful for the continued support from the community as they work to advance cancer research and carry forward Fox's legacy.

Planning for this year's campaign is already underway, and volunteers are welcome to get involved. Those interested can contact organizers directly at 204-467-5842.

Stonewall's Meier makes history overseas with championship season in Spain

By Lana Meier

A product of Stonewall's local hockey system, Annaliese Meier has taken her game to the international stage — and is now part of a historic championship run in Spain.

The Stonewall native, who first laced up her skates at just five years old, played a key role in leading CH Puigcerdà to a landmark 2025–26 season. The club captured both the Liga Iberdrola de Hockey Hielo championship and the Copa de la Reina, marking the first league title in program history while continuing a dominant stretch in tournament play.

For Meier, the milestone season is the latest chapter in a hockey journey that began in the Interlake and has carried her across continents.

"I remember going from one rink to another when I was playing for the Stonewall Blues and the Sturgeon Heights Huskies," she said. "One of my most memorable seasons was the year we won the Winnipeg Women's High School championship in my Grade 10 year. We weren't supposed to win that year — we were the underdogs — but we just kept grinding."

That early lesson in perseverance and teamwork has stayed with her.

"That year, I realized how important a positive attitude and an all-in team effort were," she said. "I've tried to carry that forward at every level."

After developing through local programs, Meier advanced to the U SPORTS ranks with the University of Calgary Dinos, where she spent five seasons balancing the demands of high-level hockey with academics.

"University hockey was a new level of play," she said. "It taught me how to balance academics with high-level hockey and really improved my time management."

Following her university career — and the completion of both an undergraduate degree and a bachelor of education — Meier began exploring opportunities to continue playing the game she loves while pursuing her professional goals.

"When I was younger, I saw players from Canada going to Europe, and I always dreamed of that," she said. "After graduating, I realized I could keep playing while also working toward a career in education."

Her first stop overseas came in Germany during the 2024–25 season, where she adjusted to a new culture, language and style of play.

"The biggest adjustment was getting used to cultural norms and the language," she said.

That experience helped ease the transition into her second season abroad, this time in Puigcerdà, Spain — a move that proved both comfortable and rewarding.

"This year was even better because it's my second year living abroad," Meier said. "The community in Puigcerdà has been very welcoming and made the adjustment easy."

On the ice, Meier delivered a standout season, recording 15 goals and 17 assists for 32 points in just 21 games. Her offensive production helped fuel a team that posted a 15-3 regular-season record before dominating in the playoffs.

Puigcerdà swept CH Jaca in the semifinals and went on to defeat SH Majadahonda in three straight games to secure the league title. The team followed that performance by capturing the Copa de la Reina, a final-four tournament, defeating CHH Txuri Urdin IHT before topping CH Jaca in the final.

According to Meier, the success was driven by a combination of skill, growth and a shared passion for the game.

"This year's team just loved hockey," she said. "We had four Canadian imports, and in Canada we've had access to a lot of development opportunities. We were able to share that with our teammates, and you could really see everyone improving week after week."

The championship run carried significance well beyond the locker room, resonating deeply within the local community.

"It was pretty special," Meier said. "It was more than just a championship for the team — it was for the entire community."

Support from fans was evident throughout the playoffs, with some travelling long distances to cheer on the team.

"Some families drive five hours one way to watch us play," she said. "When we came back after winning, the whole town came out to welcome us. Then, on the Monday, the town shut down for a parade."

The playoff atmosphere, she added, was electric.

"There were lots of our team colours — black and yellow — in the stands," she said.

While the European game has its differences, Meier has embraced both the style of play and her evolving role within it. She noted that her focus has shifted in recent years toward helping teammates grow and contributing to team success in a broader sense.

"I really try to help the other players develop," she said.

Off the ice, her international experience has also opened doors professionally and culturally. In addition to playing, Meier has been teaching English and continuing to build connections within her community.

"I've been able to practise my French, teach English and learn some Spanish and German," she said.

Despite the distance from home, Meier said she remains closely connected to her roots in Stonewall and takes pride in representing her hometown abroad.

"I'm proud of the opportunities I had growing up in Stonewall," she said. "It's allowed me to travel the world."

She added that hockey's global network has made the experience even more meaningful.

"The hockey community is small — no matter where you go, you know someone," she said. "I have friends in a lot of countries, and some of my former Dinos teammates are also playing in Europe, so we get to connect when we can."

Looking ahead, Meier hopes to continue building both her hockey and teaching careers, with a goal of securing a full-time role in education while remaining involved in the sport.

For young players back home with similar aspirations, her advice is simple.

"Dream big and don't let obstacles get in your way," she said. "My mom always encouraged us to go through doors and embrace new opportunities."

For Meier, it's proof that a small-town start can lead to the world stage — and that the journey is far from over.

Spring hockey camps draw growing number of girls to the ice

By Jo-Anne Procter

Interest in girls' hockey continues to grow across the Interlake, with 84 players lacing up for the Interlake Sprites Girls Hockey spring skills sessions — a program designed to build confidence, develop skills and welcome newcomers to the game.

Held over two weeks in Teulon, Stony Mountain, Stonewall and Warren, the camps brought together players in the U7, U9, U11 and U13 age groups. A total of 12 sessions were offered for U7 and U9 players, along with six sessions for U11 and U13.

Open to all skill levels, the camps created an inclusive environment for both first-time skaters and experienced players. Interlake Sprites Hockey introduces girls as young as four to the game, focusing on fundamentals while fostering teamwork and a strong sense of community.

Each session began with 15 minutes of skating-focused drills before players moved into passing, shooting, faceoffs and team play. U11 and U13 participants also took part in 30 minutes of dryland training ahead of their ice time.

Founded by Patti Taylor of Stonewall, the program is led by coaches Steph Martens, Nikki Mathews and Krystin Lundale, with support from 13 mentor coaches from the Stonewall Blues and Warren Wildcats female teams.

For many participants, the experience goes beyond skill development.

Josie Borkowsky of Gimli, who attended both the Stonewall and Warren camps in the U9 division, said the atmosphere stood out.

"I loved the hockey camp because of all the girl coaches," she said. "I had so much fun. They made me feel really appreciated."

Coach Jadyn presents Charlotte Scrivens with the U7 Sprite Award.

Four goaltenders took part in specialized development, while younger players from U7 and up were given the chance to try the position.

At each session, one player was recognized with a Sprites award for bringing energy to the ice, receiving a commemorative bookmark. The camps also added a fun twist on the final day with an on-ice Easter egg hunt.

The program saw significant growth this spring, welcoming 39 new Sprites players, including 17 girls who were trying hockey for the first time.

Cassandra Tronrud of Teulon said the program has made a lasting impression on her daughter Rhylee, who plays in the U7 division.

"Whether you're just starting out or you're looking to build on skills you already have, they have a spot for everyone," she said. "It's not just about hockey when you take your girls. It's about building a community, friendships and strong leaders on and off the ice."

She added the program is well organized and led by a dedicated group of volunteers.

The Interlake Sprites plan to host additional development and transitional

Interlake forwards leading way early in MJHL semis

By Kieran Reimer

Two Manitoba Junior Hockey League clubs made their Turnbull Cup semifinal debuts last week with Interlake representation on both sides of the best-of-seven series.

The top-ranked Niverville Nighthawks led by forwards Hayden Wheddon (Stonewall), Adam Vigfusson (Gimli), and Dawson Zeller (St. Andrews) find themselves even at one game apiece with the Waywayseecappo Wolverines, and their own trio of Noah Oughton (St. Laurent), Blake Farthing (Stonewall), and Ryder Kirk (Stonewall), following game's one and two.

Thursday's game one featured goals scored solely by Interlake's own with Wheddon and Oughton burying for their respective teams before Vigfusson tallied the game winner for Niverville at 7:46 of the third period.

His fifth of the postseason stood as the final goal for either side, as the Nighthawks claimed a 2-1 victory in front of 852 at Niverville CRRC.

Nighthawks goaltender Austin Dubinsky finished with 24 saves in the series opener while Wayway's Jase Wareham turned aside 34.

Teams then headed west for Waywayseecappo Arena Complex on Saturday where the Wolverines drew even with a 3-1 victory in front of 888.

A scoreless first led into a second period with goals by Wayway's Dylan Duzan and Niverville's Kole Mears to tie things at one.

The Wolverines regained the lead just over five minutes into the third when Dylan Hebert supplied them with the eventual game-winning goal.

His first of the playoffs was followed up later on by Sebastien Hicks scoring at 19:13 of the third to seal Wayway's first win of the series.

Wareham finished with 27 in the Wayway crease while Dubinsky tallied 23 on the Niverville side.

The clubs now enter a new week that will include game's three through a potential game six, with action continuing to flip-flop between arenas.

The Virden Oil Capitals hold a 2-0 series lead over the Steinbach Pistons in the other semifinal series.

UPCOMING GAMES:

- Game Three: Monday, April 6, 7:30 p.m. at Niverville CRRC

Young Interlake players inspired by PWHL experience

By Annaliese Meier

The U13 Interlake Lightning girls got a rare, up-close look at the professional game this past weekend — sharing the ice with players from the Ottawa Charge at a special clinic at Camp Manitou.

The session offered a unique opportunity for young players in the Interlake to learn directly from professionals in the Professional Women's Hockey League, part of the league's growing efforts to connect with young athletes and inspire the next generation of the women's game.

Held at Camp Manitou — a year-round training and recreation facility operated by the True North Youth Foundation just outside Winnipeg — the clinic featured high-tempo drills and one-on-one instruction, giving players a firsthand look at the speed and skill of the professional level.

For head coach Meghan Humeniuk, the opportunity came together in an unexpected but meaningful way.

"This opportunity came together somewhat unexpectedly through a connection between one of our players' families and the True North Youth Foundation," she said. "We're incredibly grateful that it did — it turned into a truly special experience for our team."

Humeniuk said moments like this go far beyond a single practice.

"I truly believe our program in the Interlake continues to grow and strengthen each year. At the same time, women's sports — especially hockey — are gaining incredible momentum across Canada and around the world," she said. "Opportunities like this don't just impact our program, they contribute to the growth of girls' hockey everywhere."

The Interlake-based team, made up of players from communities across the region, recently wrapped up its winter season, making the clinic a memorable way to close out the year.

For the players, the excitement was immediate.

"I was really excited to experience this opportunity," said Hailey Koomen. "I was excited to do this with my hockey team and get to meet the Ottawa Charge girls."

Koomen also had a memorable moment during the session.

"My favourite player is Brooke McQuigge because she is really good and she taught me hockey stuff when she was partnered up with me in the battling drills," she said.

Team captain Kylie Brunel said the clinic was a fitting way to wrap up the season.

"When I found out we would be training with a PWHL team, I thought it would be a cool, fun experience and a great way to end the season with my team," she said.

She also reflected on the broader impact of the moment.

"It's pretty neat that there is a professional hockey league for women."

For Harper Farthing, the chance to learn directly from elite players stood out most.

"To be able to train with PWHL players and to learn from them," she said. "Anything, to be honest, to get better."

Farthing, who plays centre and wing, said she's focusing on improving her playmaking.

"To be quick and not rush with the puck ... opening up and starting plays," she said.

She added that seeing players at the professional level has shifted her mindset.

"It means that I can be at that level if I work hard enough ... it makes me think to always work at 150 per cent every time."

Lucy Roy also drew inspiration from the players she met and those she already looks up to.

"My favourite player is Emma Maltais because she reminds me of me — she's small and she's a playmaker," Roy said, also pointing to Ottawa Charge defender Jocelyn Larocque as a role model. "She is a great player and from Manitoba."

Roy said the experience was unlike anything she's been part of before.

"I have never been part of something like this before, but I thought it was so much fun and pretty cool to get to skate with some professional female hockey role models," she said.

Humeniuk said that kind of exposure is invaluable for young athletes.

"It's not every day that young female athletes have the chance to connect with and learn from professional women in the sport," she said. "Being able to see and interact with professional players gives them a tangible example of what's possible. It makes the dream of playing at the next level feel real and achievable."

She added that the normalization of women's professional hockey may be the most powerful takeaway of all.

"As someone who has spent a lifetime in the game, it was incredibly powerful to watch young girls engage with professional female players as if it were completely normal," she said. "That, in itself, speaks volumes about how far the game has come."

For a group of young players still early in their hockey journeys, the experience didn't just end their season — it helped shape what they now believe is possible.

OBITUARY

Harry Andrews
1953 - 2026

It is with deep sadness that we announce the peaceful passing of Frank Harry Earnest Andrews on March 29, 2026, at the age of 73, at the Gimli Hospital.

Harry was born on March 8, 1953, in Thompson, Manitoba. In July of 1977 he married Cheryl Charison from Gunton, Mb. Harry and Cheryl built a life rooted in family and faith. They eventually moved to Gimli, where they raised their five children. In 2020 they fulfilled a dream together, purchasing a farm south of Gimli in Sandy Hook. There on the farm Harry found peace and purpose that suited him well.

He was a devoted father to Rachel (Kyle), Kristen (Landon), Steven (Alex), Becky (Isaac), and Amy (Chris), and a proud grandfather to 14 grandchildren who will carry his memory forward: Zion (19), Asher (16), Solomon (16), Kaelyn (15), Chloe (15), Lyrik (13), Jude (13), Aveah (12), Lex (11), Axel (10), Lennon (5), Cohen (1), and a granddaughter due in September. He will be reunited with his grandson, Isaiah, who entered heaven 16 years ago. He delighted in all of his grandkids. Harry is also survived by his siblings Debbie, Mark, Susan, Pam, and Raymond.

He will be remembered as a godly man with a wonderful sense of humor, ambitious ideas, and for the warmth he brought to everyone around him. Though we grieve his absence, we hold fast to the hope and assurance that we will see Harry again, reunited in the presence of our Lord.

OBITUARY

Helen Margaret Rose (nee Rodway) Riddell
May 10, 1939 – March 31, 2026

Peacefully, after a brief illness Helen passed away March 31, 2026 surrounded by her loving family.

Helen is survived by her husband of 67 years Chris Riddell; daughter Leslie Reimer (Rudy), sons Chris Riddell (Lori) and Jeff Riddell (Ida-Marie); grandchildren Coltyn Reimer (Shayna), Skya Reimer, Mariannick Kroeker (Brett), Brian Riddell (Mira-Joy), Julie Riddell, Emma Riddell, Sarah Riddell and great-grandchildren Hubert Kroeker and Teo Riddell. Her brothers Bill Rodway (Donna) and Jim Rodway (Del).

Helen was predeceased by her parents Graham and Nancy Rodway, sisters Nancy Crockatt and Pat Kotelko.

Helen was born on May 10, 1939 in Stonewall, Manitoba. At the age of 11, her family moved to Warren, Manitoba where she would build the life and legacy we remember today. It was during her school years that she met the love of her life, Chris Riddell.

After high school, Helen worked briefly at Great-West Life and Imperial Oil. She and Chris were married on June 27, 1959 and soon after began their life together on the farm. There they built not only a home, but a life grounded in hard work, love and dedication.

While raising their children Helen and Chris worked tirelessly but always made time for friends, family and sports. Helen was deeply involved in her community. She was a lifetime member of the Warren Curling Club, taught Sunday school at the Warren United Church and volunteered at both the Warren Recreation Centre and the Warren Community Hall.

Helen played an integral role in the success of the farm and business she and Chris built over the many years of their marriage. She was an inspiration to all who knew her – deeply devoted herself to her family, her community and her farm.

Married for nearly 67 years, Helen's life was rich with love, including the joy of becoming grandmother and great-grandmother. She had a wonderful sense of humor, loved to laugh and shared that gift with everyone around her.

She was an amazing mother, a devoted wife and an incredibly hardworking woman.

Rest in peace mom. We love you.

Celebration of life will be held at the Warren Memorial Hall, Saturday, June 13 at 1:00 p.m. Internment will be held at Warren Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers donations can be made to the Interlake Eastern Regional Health Authority, the Warren United Church or a charity of your choice.

The family would like to thank the doctors, nurses and staff at the Stonewall Hospital for the phenomenal care for Helen and kindness towards her family.
