By Natasha Tersigni

It was an exciting day for executives at ArrowQuip as they broke ground on their new 64,000-square-foot manufacturing facility located in the RM in the of Woodlands on May 21. The new facility will allow ArrowQuip, a manufacturer specializing in agriculture equipment, to increase their production rate five times from their current output.

Work on the new building is set to start in the next few weeks, with preliminary land work already taking place. Headingley general contractors Crane Steel Structures will be overseeing construction.

Road 8 south of the Woodlands townsite. Their expanded operation is moving down the street to a new building just east of Highway 6, next to the municipality's public workshop. The building is set to be complete by June 1, 2016.

ArrowQuip is currently the RM's largest employer, and with the new building space and continued growth, company executives hope to see employment opportunities grow. ArrowQuip's main focus in the last three years has been in their Arrow Cattlequip division, manufacturing livestock handling products such as squeeze chutes, alleys, tubs and loading ramps.

"In 2012, we were 14 employees, and right now, we are 42. With the new facility, we are expecting to dramatically increase the output we currently produce while producing a safer and higher quality end product. In the last two years, we have increased our purchasing in the Manitoba area four times," said general manager Andrew Firth, who added the company also has several contractors in Manitoba who they sub-contract work too.

"We are always looking for people, especially from the local area, to join our team. Our employees are very important to us. The success of ArrowQuip in the future will come from a team effort of all our employees. We have employment opportunities not only on the manufacturer side but in marketing, engineering, sales and finance as well."

The ArrowQuip manufacturing plant in Woodlands services farmers throughout North America. With an Australian plant currently serving the Asian market, ArrowQuip is looking at expanding into the European market with this new building.

The RM of Woodlands council attended the ceremony and are excited about the economic growth and development spin-off this new expansion will have for the RM.

"This is pretty exciting for the RM to be able to work with these guys," said Reeve Trevor King.

"This is big for the RM as businesses like this tend to attract others. We have been working closely with them to make sure everything goes smoothly. Our community economic development officers have been working hard in the last seven years to be able to attract businesses such as these here."

Prairie Blossom School greenhouse in full bloom

By Natasha Tersigni

Students from the Prairie Blossom Hutterite Colony, located southwest of Balmoral, have been hard at work since February growing plants for their business, Roots of the Future Greenhouse. This is the second year the students have been working on their greenhouse project and they are anxiously waiting to open its doors to customers.

On June 4 the greenhouse will host their grand opening from 3 to 5 p.m. Following a ribbon-cutting ceremony, doors will be open for colony members and the rest of the public to purchase a wide variety of plants including bedding plants, perennials, herbs and vegetables.

All the students at the school are involved with the greenhouse, but in order to hold a higher job on the management team — such as CEO, assistant CEO, treasurer, secretary, public relations or book keeper — students have to apply for the job, create a resume and be interviewed by the board of directors, which is the staff at the school. The management team directs classmates in tasks such as planting and the maintenance of the greenhouse. To get ready for the June opening, students started planting at the end of January.

Growing the plants and running the business side of the greenhouse encompasses many of the students' classes, including science, language arts, social studies and math.

"We are trying the integrate our curriculum and take our math program especially and build it right into running a business, which is practical and which these guys will grow up and do on the colony, so it works well for them," said principal Kristin Smith.

To help with the planting side of the business, the school received some professional advice.

"A botanist came from the University of Manitoba and she brought a few plants and taught us how to properly water them. A normal plant you put your finger in (about 20 centimetres) to see if it is dry," said Grade 9 student Tamara, who added the botanist also taught the students about pest management.

"She told us if we spray the plant every second day with soapy water, the pesticides can't reproduce and they will die."

With just a few weeks left before opening day, the greenhouse management team is busy working on some final marketing products with help from Balmoral School teacher Carter McLean and the men that do marketing for the colony business Prairie Trusses. Students are creating a website complete with commercials, business cards and posters. Starting June 4, the greenhouse will be open Monday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m and by appointment in the evenings and weekends. Inspiring SCI's gay-straight alliance for years to come

By Natasha Tersigni

For the past four years, Stonewall Collegiate Institute's (SCI) Friends Recognizing Everyone Equally (FREE) has been working to make the school an inclusive environment for all students.

Five members of SCI's gay-straight alliance (GSA), along with SCI teacher Tara Didychuk and Balmoral School teacher Mark Lawson, spent their May long weekend in Winnipeg attending the 2nd Annual OUTShine conference, Canada's national gaystraight alliance summit. This is the first time the conference was held in Winnipeg, and youth and educators from across the country came together to discuss lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning (LGBTQ) inclusion in schools and creating and sustaining gay-straight alliances.

Grade 12 students Tyler Grayson-Lauber and Jordyn MacDonald have been part of FREE since it first began and thoroughly enjoyed their experience at the conference, including learning how to sustain a GSA and the variety of speakers that were showcased throughout the weekend.

"It was inspiring to see how these people could overcome so many awful things and come out so positive and how successful they are now," said Grayson-Lauber, who added one of the inspiring speakers he heard was Scott Jones.

Jones is an openly gay man from Nova Scotia. One night, he was at a local bar in New Glasgow and he was sitting with his friends and had his arm around one of them. A man then came up from behind Jones stabbed him in the back twice. One stab wound severed his spinal cord, and then the attacker tried to slash Jones' throat. Following the attack, Jones told police and media that he believed he was stabbed because he was openly gay and had his arm around another man. Although the attack left him paralyzed from the waist down, Jones travels across Canada encouraging people to speak up against homophobia.

"This happened to Scott Jones a year and a half ago and he is now going around schools and talking about is experience. I found that amazing," said Grayson-Lauber.

Grayson and MacDonald hope the conference helps to spark new ideas for current members on how they can encourage more students to join FREE. The pair fear that fewer and fewer students are joining the group due to the stigma attached to it.

SCI's gay-straight alliance, Friends Recognizing Everyone Equally, travelled to Winnipeg earlier this month to take part in the national summit OUTshine. While participants had time to let their hair down, the weekend was spent mostly listening to speakers and learning new ways to keep GSAs thriving in schools. Pictured left to right, back row: Gillian Pinniger, Tyler Grayson-Lauber, Jordyn MacDonald, Tara Didychuk, Mark Lawson; front row: Hannah Coburn, Natasha Harvey and Ericka Erickson.

"The group started when we were in Grade 9 and was very small and not well known. Not many people know about it and some are afraid to come to the group," said MacDonald, who added often students think they will be labelled if they get involved with a GSA.

A component of the conference was addressing the ally component of gay-straight alliance and the importance of having people from all walks of life, not just the LGBTQ community, become members of GSAs.

"It is important to make yourself known as an ally and be a supporter," said MacDonald.

"Don't just stay silent because silence lets things happen," added Grayson-Lauber.

Katie Munro was 18 when she was diagnosed with Crohn's disease. Ten months later, she has found herself in the campaign for a cure

By Stefanie Lasuik

Katie Munro is ready to raise awareness and funds for a largely unpublicized ailment. The 19-year-old Warren resident was diagnosed with Crohn's disease nearly a year ago and is doing everything in her power to further efforts towards a cure.

Crohn's disease is an inflammation of the gastrointestinal tract, not to be confused with irritable bowel syndrome. Crohn's is a chronic illness, which leads to regular symptoms of abdominal pain, vomiting, diarrhea, fatigue, fever and chills, joint pain and weight loss. For Munro, these symptoms nag daily on her body and her mind.

"It's something I think about every day, all the time," Munro said, noting that she constantly wonders whether she'll feel well on any given day. The chronicity of the disease has affected her social life as well, causing her uncertainty when making plans and disappointment when she has cancel.

Munro's diet is restricted by the autoimmune disease, which bars her from leafy greens, seeds, nuts and ice cream. Munro receives treatment every eight weeks through an infusion pump injected into her arm. While she acknowledges the frustration, Munro maintains positivity.

"I have to keep my head up and keep going because I can't let it affect me that way," she explained.

Munro raised money for the cause by setting up a donation table at Chicken Chef on a takeout-only day a few months past. She is now preparing to partake in the three-kilometre Gutsy Walk put on by Crohn's and Colitis Canada on June 7 in Winnipeg. She is collecting pledges in order to do so.

Anybody wishing to pledge Munro to support the fight against Crohn's disease can contact her at 204-513-1131.

Teya Tronrud, 13, golden at provincials

By Stefanie Lasuik

Balmoral resident Teya Tronrud brought home gold from cheerleading provincials held in Portage la Prairie on May 2. A member of Dynamite Cheer, Tronrud has been cheering for five years and was excited to see her team's diligence pay off.

"We had worked really hard and we felt we deserved it because we definitely got a lot better," Tronrud said, noting that many of the girls on her squad were newcomers to the sport at the beginning of the year.

Tronrud's team consists of 18 members ranging in age from 11 to 16. The girls practise every Sunday from September to May.

For Tronrud, provincials marked the end of this season's success, but she has dreams to one day travel to Florida to compete on the world stage.

Town council discusses arena revenue, composting

New ideas presented to council that may help increase hockey arena revenues

By Marney Blunt

Revenue for the hockey arenas at the Veterans Memorial Complex has been on the decline, town council says.

However, the town's parks and arenas supervisor, Brett Chatfield, has presented some innovative ideas to council that may help fix the issue.

"The increase (in ice rentals) he is proposing is to meet costs because presently we are losing," said Anne Burns, the chief administrative officer for the Town of Stonewall. Exact numbers for the increases were not yet determined.

"So this would make us break even; we wouldn't lose money. The last increase was two years ago and it was not even two per cent, and that didn't cover costs. He also indicated that we have Minor Hockey and that we don't rent to other hockey organizations, which would then be charged even more if we did," CAO Burns said.

Previously, the Minor Hockey League was charged in four-hour blocks for ice time, including flooding. The new policy proposal would change that to a per-hour charge, excluding flooding time.

"So even though the price may go up, it may not be the same overall cost because he's not going to do the fourhour blocks," explained Burns.

Chatfield also indicated in his proposal that the Minor Hockey League reserves ice time, and when it's not needed, the league rents it out. The proposal also included charging for use of the downstairs meeting room at the arena, as well as some innovative advertising ideas that can help offset costs.

"None of the teams want any extra ice. They play enough tournaments and games and they seem to have enough practice time," said Scott Myers, the president of the Minor Hockey League."I just think that we see the ice empty enough. Right now, we take it all and we try and sell it if it's empty.

"We'd love to give it back to him to try and sell it. A lot of our guys are volunteers and don't have the extra time to put in."

Burns said some concerns had been raised over the proposed policy, including worries that the increases may impact membership and it may cause young participants to drop out due to increased costs.

Council has tabled the proposal for further discussion before a resolution is passed.

Backyard composting

Stonewall's go-to composting guy, Lloyd Jensen, made a delegation to town council during the regular meeting on Wednesday, May 20 to discuss ideas for promoting compost distribution in the town.

Jensen says that although there are lots of backyard composting units in the town, his numbers say people either aren't using them or are having trouble using them, and he wants to help.

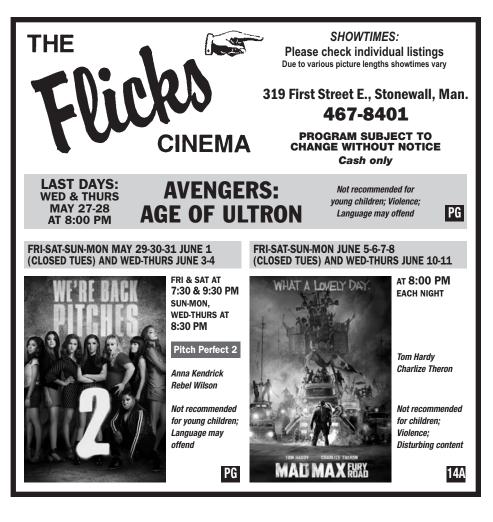

"I thought we should try and promote the heck out of these things and give people as much support and help as we possibly can to get them to use them. And if they still don't want to use them, (we could) recycle them to somebody else who might want to use

Jensen discussed the possibility of doing individual visits to homeowners to help them learn to use their backyard composting bins.

"We can set up a time and go right in their backyard, take a look at what they've got, and if they are having problems, try and fix the problems," he said.

Jensen also discussed the potential of getting a group of approximately 20 people together to take part in a demonstration on how to use the backyard composting system.

Province opens door to in-store brewing services

Staff

Manitobans will soon be able to make their own wine and beer at local stores and take their creations home when they are ready for consumption as part of a new wave of liquor law changes.

The Liquor and Gaming Authority of Manitoba is now accepting applications from Manitoba retailers that sell home wine and beer making supplies as their primary business to offer in-store brewing services to their customers, Mineral Resources Minister Dave Chomiak, minister responsible for the Liquor and Gaming Control Act, announced on May 22.

"During our consultations on modernizing liquor laws, Manitoba consumers and businesses expressed interest in opening up opportunities for in-store wine and beer making," Chomiak said in a news release."Instore brewing offers an opportunity for Manitobans to enjoy and learn about beer and wine making even if they do not have the space in their homes, or don't wish to purchase, operate and clean the equipment themselves."

Wine and brew-making supply retailers will be able to help their customers select the ingredient kits for beer and wine, and provide instructional advice, equipment and manufacturing space for the production of wine and beer for home consumption. In-store brewing facilities already operate in the majority of other Canadian jurisdictions including Saskatchewan and Ontario.

This change is made possible by the new Liquor and Gaming Control Act, which came into effect April 1, 2014, as part of the Manitoba government's ongoing modernization of liquor laws that will offer businesses increased opportunities to respond to evolving consumer demands, eliminate red tape and improve public safety.

Ag fair to celebrate rural life

By Stefanie Lasuik

Rockwood is ready to celebrate rural Manitoban life. The annual South Interlake Rockwood Agricultural Society Fair is set to take place June 5, 6 and 7.

New this year is a Friday evening spirit, spud and steer dinner at the Red Barn Bar and Grill.

Saturday will see the 4-H beef show and sale, taking place from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., the Rocklands Antique Club tractor display, a Kids' Fun Zone from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and judged English and Western horse shows beginning at 8 a.m. On Saturday, the Manitoba Mutts Dog Rescue organization and the Ruff House Boarding Kennel and Training Centre plan to hold shows at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

This year's horse show will welcome a refurbished ring with increased fill and sand to improve drainage. New fencing has also been added.

"That's been a huge job so it can be safe," fair organizer Diane Blue said.

Horse show co-ordinator Penny Fiddler explained that weather will no longer affect the ring, so that under any condition, the show will go on.

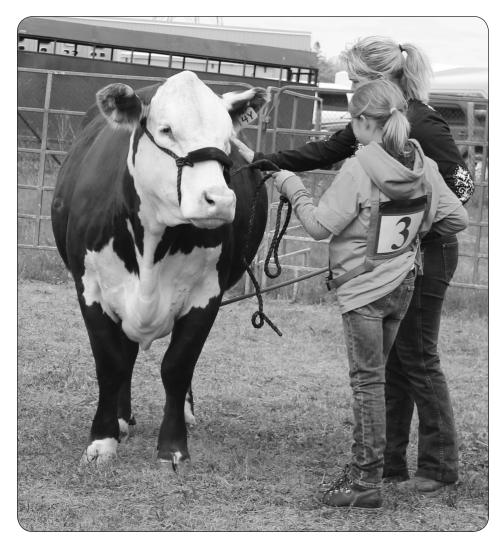

Riders from six to 60-plus will take part in the horse show, which last year saw over 100 participants.

The fair festivities will continue on Sunday with gymkhana events, mini train rides, vendors, equipment displays and more. Cold plate dinners with pie will be on sale for $12.

Manitoba Agriculture Fairs celebrate the life of rural communities by combining agriculture, education and recreation.

"They are an integral part of the rural landscape and provide a place for friends and families to connect, to learn and to have fun," said Ron Kostyshyn, the Manitoba Minister of Agriculture.

The Ag ground gates open at 7 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday, and admission is $4 per day but no charge for kids under 6. Shipping the chip from Stonewall to Phoenix

By Marney Blunt

The Grade 7 students at Ecole Stonewall Centennial School have been experiencing a taste of engineering during science class by participating in an international engineering design challenge competition.

Two Grade 7 science classes participated in the competition called Ship the Chip. The students were challenged to come up with a lightweight container to ship a Pringles chip from Stonewall to Phoenix, Ariz., without damaging the chip.

"It's a program that's done by Exxon Mobil and they came up with this lesson plan that's an engineering challenge for the kids to try and design this chip-containing container so that it doesn't break in transit when it's going to the postal office and onto its destination in another country," said Maria Nickel, a teacher at Ecole Stonewall Centennial School.

"It's done internationally. So we're paired up with a school in Phoenix, Ariz."

Nickel says she decided to take part in the project after collaborating with a friend from the Honeywell Educators at Space Academy program. The program, created in partnership with the U.S. Space & Rocket Center, is a professional development program that aims to help middle school math and science teachers become betterrounded educators in science, technology, engineering and math. Nickel took the program in 2008 and 2011.

The students had to follow certain parameters for the project, including coming up with original designs and making the container as lightweight as possible.

"It's not just simply a matter of building the container; it also has to be lightweight and has to have a specific volume and also has to have an intactness for the chip," said Nickel.

The students tested out their designs in class before selecting three from each class to be shipped to Phoenix.

"We had everything from Styrofoam balls to cardboard containers to granola bar containers. Some kids had some Styrofoam blocks (and) they enclosed it with cotton balls," said Nickel.

After the containers made it down to Phoenix, they were opened and photos were sent back to Nickel to show which of the containers did the trick. Five of the six containers made it down with no damage to the chip. The students also had the chance to look at some other designs that the students from Phoenix came up with. Nickel says the students were very excited to participate in something with another school across the border. "I think it's a great way to get the kids engaged with engineering. We need more of them on our planet," said Nickel. "So we really want kids to think of engineering as something that it fun and something that could be a really cool career. So that's what this project was designed to do. So I'm really happy that I got involved with the project and that we could do this and collaborate internationally."

Calling all young employees

By Stefanie Lasuik

As the school year nears a close, the Manitoba Youth Job Centre (MYJC) is ready to help Interlake students find suitable summer employment. Now in its 40th year of operation, the MYJC offices can be found in 43 communities across the province, two of which are situated in Stonewall and Teulon.

The MYJC offers several free-ofcharge services to those aged 12 to 29. Nicole Murray, the Teulon youth job co-ordinator, breaks down these services into three categories.

Firstly, the centre offers employment referral — a service that matches employees and employers. Prospective employees give the centre a list of their skills and desired lines of work and the centre asks local businesses if they're looking to hire. If businesses are, they place a job order with the centre, outlining the job vacancy and its hours and pay. The centre then matches job orders with employees.

The centre also runs an odd job squad for youth of ages 12 to 16. Throughout various events during the summer, these youth can gain work experience and make some money. They can help homeowners with various chores, such as mowing lawns, or partake in day jobs created by the youth job co-ordinators. In the past, these events have included barbecues, strawberry picking, window washing, car washing and window painting for Canada Day. Murray said that the squad helps kids gain skills before going out into the workforce, such as customer service skills, communicative ability and teamwork proficiency.

The third MYJC service involves resume and interview workshops. Paolo Punzal, the Stonewall youth job co-ordinator, said that the centre helps youths and young adults with both cover letters and resumes and prepares them for future interviews.

Murray will be holding a parent information night on June 11 from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Teulon's MYJC office, the Teulon Civic Centre. For more information on this or any of Teulon's MYJC services, she can be contacted at 886-3588. Punzal is set to host a similar evening on June 11 between 5 and 7 p.m. at Stonewall's MYJC location, the Quarry Park Heritage Arts Centre. He can be reached at 204-467-7920.

Keeping the music flowing with R&B singer Flo

By Natasha Tersigni

When you ask Tessa Thevenot what she wants to be when she grows up, she'll say with a grin she wants to be a singer. It's a bit ironic because by all rights Thevenot is already living out her career ambitions. The Grade 8 student at École Stonewall Centennial School has a long list of musical milestones, including just this school year performing at the Lincoln Center in New York City and debuting her grassroots band, Now Not Ever, where she is the lead singer and writes original songs with the rest of the band members, her brother Thomas and friend Abby Georgison.

On May 9, Thevenot added another major musical accomplishment to her long list of credentials.

Thevenot and the Winnipeg Youth Chorus took the stage with wellknown Winnipeg R&B singer Flo Oramasionwu for their yearly concert during the Hope Couture Fashion Gala. The 29th annual show was a fundraiser for Ronald McDonald House Manitoba, and Flo was the main attraction with the Winnipeg Youth Chorus providing back-up lyrics to many of her songs.

For the cover of TLC's song Waterfall, Thevenot joined Flo centre stage for a duet. Thevenot was responsible for the rap portion of the song, a role that helped her improve her on-stage performance skills.

"She said I had a good stage presence. I opened up much more with singing with her on stage," said Thevenot.

This is not the choir's first time performing with Flo. They provided back up singing for her anti-bullying song Hateless, including a performance on the official music video and they performed alongside her at the MTS Centre during the Rockin' For Choic-

Growing emotional intelligence through empathy

Roots of Empathy wraps up another successful year

By Stefanie Lasuik

On May 22, the Interlake School Division's Roots of Empathy program celebrated another successful year nearing a close with a luncheon at Ecole R.W. Bobby Bend School. The program, which runs in 16 classrooms across the school division, aims at increasing students' social and emotional competence.

Each classroom interacts with and is taught through a baby's development. Every three weeks, the baby's visit focuses on a different theme, such as recognizing feelings and responsibility. A trained instructor elaborates on a single theme in one class before and one class after each baby visit. The visits allow the students to recognize the baby's feelings, then to transfer the same type of recognition skills to interactions with their friends and families. According to Ecole R.W. Bobby Bend School guidance counsellor Heather Sanche, this helps foster kind and caring citizenship.

Although the program's purpose is to impart emotional intelligence on students, Sanche believes it offers even more. She points to lessons on safety, communication and issues of infant vulnerability as invaluable aspects of the program.

Mothers and babies who participated in this year's ISD Roots of Empathy program pose at the program's year-end luncheon last Friday.

"It's good education just for life," Sanche said.

Roots of Empathy seems to be a win-winwin for the instructors, families and students.

Rosser instructor Belinda McNaughton thoroughly enjoys the program and deemed it one of the highlights of the school year.

Brittany Walker, the mother of one of the babies involved in the program, said that it was nice to be able to show the kids how her baby Logan grows.

"We just find it lots of fun," she said. The students also enjoy the program while they learn.

"I think it's fun to be around the little ones. We learned about all the different stages," said Erin S., a Grade 2 students at Bobby Bend school.

Roots of Empathy seeks new babies to partake in the program each year. Any parents with babies between the ages of two and four months in September 2015 and who are interested in the program can contact Heather Sanche at École R.W. Bobby Bend School at 204-467-5537.

Unique fundraiser comes to Stonewall

By Stefanie Lasuik

More than 30 trucks will fill the South Interlake Agriculture Society Fair grounds June 13 for Stonewall's first ever Touch a Truck community event.

Touch a Truck provides a rare opportunity for children, young and old, to climb on board and safely explore many exciting vehicles usually seen only from a distance.

The vehicles on display will include helicopters from the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Winnipeg Police Service, as well as police cars, ambulances, fire trucks, excavators, Thomas the Train, various farm equipment, a limousine and more. Each machine will have a designated spokesperson to guide the kids through the vehicle and teach them about its different parts and purposes.

The event will also entail a refreshment stand with hot dogs, popcorn and drinks, a bouncy castle, and a tattoo and face-painting station.

One of the organizers, Teryl Moore, said that the attraction of this fundraiser is that it is aimed at kids, for kids. The children can enjoy seeing, touching and climbing diverse vehicles while raising money for the daycare.

The idea came from Len Clifford, a member of the organizing committee, who's seen success in similar fundraisers in Eastern Canada.

The money raised will go towards revitalizing Stonewall Children's Centre Daycare's outdoor facilities, including purchasing new playground equipment and kids' gardening supplies.

Stonewall Children's Centre Daycare is prepped and ready to host the unique fundraiser set for June 13 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Stonewall Agriculture Grounds. Tickets are currently available for pre-sale at $5 apiece and can be obtained by calling the daycare at 204-467-2214 or through purchase at the gate. Infants under the age of one are free. Those who buy tickets through pre-sale will be entered in a draw for a door prize.

4-H annual highway cleanup

Staff

Motorists were reminded to drive with extra caution last weekend as 4-H club members carried out their annual spring cleanup on highways and roads across the province.

"The cleanup campaign is an important tradition that keeps Manitoba's landscape looking beautiful," said Infrastructure and Transportation Minister Steve Ashton.

The Manitoba government sponsors this annual event and pays 4-H clubs for each kilometre cleaned. Last year, nearly 900 4-H members from 38 clubs cleaned 484 kilometres of roadsides and ditches. There were 2,147 bags of trash collected and 4-H clubs earned $12,775 for their projects. Recyclable bottles and cans were also delivered to appropriate pickup locations.

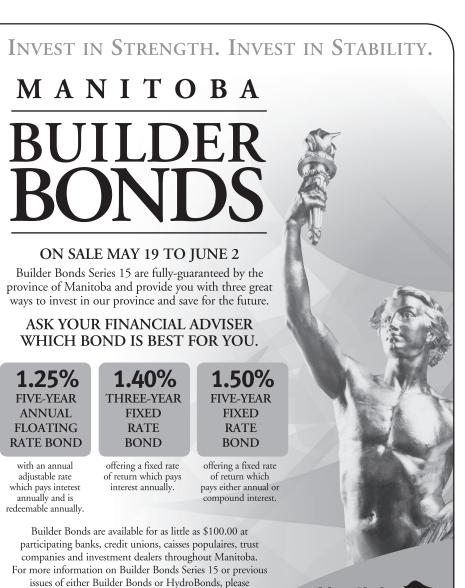

Over 20 members of the Teulon 4-H club cleaned the ditches along Highway 7 north an south of Teulon on Saturday.

"Manitoba's 4-H clubs take pride in their communities and we are pleased to reward them for providing this important public service," said Agriculture, Food and Rural Development Minister Ron Kostyshyn.

All work areas were supervised by adult volunteers and marked with safety signs.

Is green the roof colour of the future?

Do you know about green roofs, also known as eco-roofs? The idea of growing vegetation on the roofs of commercial and residential buildings has grown in popularity over the last decade because of the energy saving and esthetic advantages. Here's a quick look at a trend that could very well become the norm in the future.

There are two types of green roofs: intensive, also known as rooftop gardens (heavy roofs that support a variety of plants), or extensive. Large buildings, such as multi-family homes and industrial buildings, usually opt for extensive green roofs. The latter are simple and lightweight and are characterized by relatively low maintenance costs. Extensive gardens use a selection of plants that require little or no maintenance, such as grass and sedum.

BENEFITS

In addition to beautifying urban landscapes, green roofs have lots of advantages, both for their owners as well as for the environment in general. Green roofs in cities can significantly reduce the heat island effect caused by the sun beating down on tar roofs and asphalt streets. A layer of greenery also improves the insulating and acoustical properties of an existing roof, in addition to protecting it against normal wear and tear. The quality of the surrounding air is improved and these new green spaces encourage urban biodiversity by creating a haven for birds and insects.

The advantages of green roofs are tempting more and more urbanites. If installing a green roof interests you, make sure your plan complies with municipal regulations and building codes. Happy gardening!

Ten ways to rejuvenate your home

Does the outside of your home look a little tired and worn out? Here are some really simple tips that will help you give your home a whole new look. 1. Paint your front door a bright colour. Nothing is more eye-catching and inviting. 2. Replace the hardware around your front entrance: doorbell, mailbox, locks, etc.

3. Install a door knocker. They come in all sizes and shapes these days and can add a touch of style or whimsy to your door.

4. Give your street number a more up-to-date look. Gone are the days of those ugly metallic stickers on the mailbox.

5. If your house has wooden shutters or mouldings around the windows, there's a good chance the paint is peeling. Get out the paintbrushes and think about using this opportunity to change the colour.

6. Clean your gutters and replace them if necessary.

7. Buy a new door mat to add style to your home.

8. Replace an old doorstep. In addition to being visually unattractive, dilapidated doorsteps can cause insulation problems.

9. Clean! Use a pressure washer to clean the siding and then wash your windows.

10. Be creative with your decorative lighting. Put up some lanterns, strings of mini-lights (clear Christmas lights) or recessed lights under the steps. You'll be the envy of the neighbourhood!

You'll be amazed at how easy it can be to improve the appearance of your home. Who knows, maybe your efforts will inspire your neighbours.

A bit of privacy is essential to enjoying the pleasures of summer in your backyard. Even when you're only a few feet from your neighbours, it's still possible to tan, share a meal with friends, relax in the spa or stay out on the deck all evening without being subjected to prying eyes.

Coniferous trees and shrubs are simple solutions to the privacy question, but you have to have enough space to plant them. If your yard is small or your outdoor seating area

Hang planters on them, add some fairy lights and decorate them by setting a few colourful pots filled with herbs along the base. You'll be able to enjoy outdoor your space without feeling that everyone is watching you.

Do you feel as though a high would fence tower over you and darken the backyard? You're afraid of offending the neighbours if you build a structure to demarcate your property line? Instead of completely surrounding your yard with а fence or hedge, you could just position some wood screens or trellises in strategic places for a lighter touch. You can also play around with the height and spacing of these screens for a more aesthetic look. This trompe-l'oeil effect is perfect for creating a stylish landscape.

BEAUTI-TIPS EXPERT ADVICE ON GREAT NEUTRALS

THE PERFECT NEUTRALS

A great neutral is your BFF for home décor. Incredibly versatile, they inspire looks that are luxe and sophisticated, or casual and cozy. Understanding undertones when choosing the perfect neutral is what makes a colour choice perfect. If the undertones are in conflict, the colours in the room will appear to clash, even if they are in the same colour group

UNDERCOVER UNDERTONES

Almost all colours, other than those that are pure, have an undertone. Olive green, for instance, is green with a yellow undertone. What makes turquoise a beautiful shade of blue is its green undertone.

 Neutrals like to disguise their undertones. A tauge can go pink or purple, a grey can be warm, cool, blue, green, or red influenced. Browns that look similar on the surface can have yellow, red or green undertones. Beige can tend towards yellow, green, pink and occasionally orange undertones.

Once you have selected the colour family you want, the secret to choosing the perfect neutral shade is to com-pare it, side-by-side to another neutral in the same colour family. This helps you to see the subtle undertones which you may not have noticed in a single colour swatch.

 For whites, the best way to bring out a near invisible undertone is to compare the paint chip to the whitest white. Rooms that are 'white on white' really work if the whites have similar undertones. You will likely be disappointed, though, if you combine warm whites that have a hint of a yellow undertone, with cool whites that have a hint of blue, in the same space.

· When decorating a room that feels cold and uninviting, you would normally balance it by using colours from the warm side of the spectrum. But what if you love cool colours because they make you feel relaxed? Choose a green with yellow undertones or a blue with red undertones and your cool hues have warming characteristics. On the flip side, cool down hot colours by adding cool undertones. Just don't try this with orange. That's the one colour that will always fight back with its warm and outgoing personality

Neutrals from sophisticated to casual add value to your home. How to select the perfect neutral colour for you!

Most color schemes work best when the undertone is carried throughout the space. Consider the undertones of whatever else you place in the room and you will end up with the most beautiful results.

Members of the GAAC showed off their talents in Teulon on May 24

By Stefanie Lasuik

The Teulon Rockwood Centennial Centre was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon, as friends and family gathered to take in dance, art and theatrical performances. Members of Green Acres Art Centre (GAAC) wowed the audience with their drama performances, jazz, ballet, hip-hop, lyricals, paintings, and highland and Irish dancing.

The showcase also featured guest dancer Whitney Demainiw from the Royal Dance Conservatory, the Teulon Veselka Ukrainian Dance Club and dancers from the McConnell School of Irish Dance.

The art centre has seen their program grow this year with the addition of creative drama and junior acting classes put on by the Manitoba Theatre for Young people as well as Irish dancing instructed by the McConnell School of Dance.

All the programs provide children with an opportunity to gain confidence and self-esteem while growing in the arts and having fun.

Jill Demainiw, owner of the Royal Dance Conservatory in Winnipeg and an instructor for the Teulon program, said that the GAAC enables kids who don't necessarily fancy sports to partake in a rewarding activity.

The show ended with a moving lyrical, choreographed as a tribute to Demainiw's friends, who lost their oneyear-old child to cancer. The dancers donned white shirts and headscarves and moved gracefully in tune to "Keep Breathing." Demainiw said that she wanted to put a positive spin on the tragedy and that the dance helped the girls to appreciate their own health.

To round out an already impressive resume of art programs, the centre looks to add music lessons next year, as well as art classes for children.

Annual Balmoral Sports Day hits homerun

By Stefanie Lasuik

Kids from Kindergarten to Grade seven assembled on the ball diamonds at Balmoral rec centre and school on Saturday to partake in the annual Balmoral Sports Day. Thirtyone teams played baseball and fastball under sun-filled skies to raise money for the Balmoral baseball club and the Balmoral Recreation Centre.

"They had lots of fun," organizer Fred Shipley said.

The younger kids engaged in learnto-play activities and a skill session was open for attempts at helicopter hitting, homerun swinging, and pitching practice.

The monies raised will help refurbish the ball diamonds, from player benches to bleachers.

"Things need upgrading. It's been awhile," Shipley said.

Teeing off a new tradition in St. Laurent

By Jeff Ward

Golfers packed the Manipogo Golf Course in St. Laurent last Sunday for the first annual Métis Days Annual Golf Classic fundraiser.

The fundraiser is in support of Métis Days planned for Aug. 1-2 with all the money raised going toward the general operation of the festival.

"It's not just about putting Métis Days on, but it's also about making sure we're really infusing it with as much Métis culture as possible," said Paul Chartrand, one of the organizers of the event.

"We want to make sure that Métis Days is something really special, and to do that, we need to raise as much money as possible and that's why we're here."

The tournament is a Texas scramble format with 14 teams of four participating in the event. Each player paying a entry fee of $100 brings the funds raised to more than $5,000 before prizing is handed out. There is also a 50/50 draw which could bring in as much as $10,000 if all tickets are sold.

The tournament had a few special guests playing on the course as well in Ab McDonald and Jim Neilson, both retired NHL players. McDonald scored the first ever goal for the Winnipeg Jets in the World Hockey Association in 1972. He has four Stanley Cup rings from four consecutive Stanley Cup wins from 1958 to 1961 with the Canadiens (1958-59) and the Blackhawks (1960 and 1961). Neilson also had a Dumont was the 21st lieutenant governor general for the province serving from 1993- to 1999, and previous to that he was the president of National Métis Council. Dumont is the one of the main organizers of the event. "We've got a lot of good people here helping us raise money, and it makes me very excited about the future. This is a great starting point for us, and I hope this to be the first of many tournaments we have to benefit Métis Days," said Chartrand.

Métis Days takes place on Aug. 1 and 2 and is a celebration of Métis culture and spirit in St. Laurent.

The dignity of honesty

One of the most debilitating aspects of life today is that we do not admit to each other the cost of struggle. Our real fears are seldom allowed to surface. Yet we all struggle.

Our lives are full of pain, little comes easy for us, and we make a living, remain healthy, remain attractive and achieve success only at great cost. Fear is always present. The fear of failure, of slipping, of letting others see that life and success are not automatic for us, that life is lived on the brink of sickness, unattractiveness, boredom, failure and sadness.

However, we bury and hide struggle and fear. Rarely do we genuinely share how we really feel, what our fears are, and how difficult it is to be who we are. Rarely do we admit anyone into our inner space where fear, struggle and inadequacy make themselves felt.

We all go through life posturing strength, pretending; lying really, giving the impression that all is easy and that friendship, health, achievement and attractiveness are easeful and automatic. But that is dishonest and debilitating — dishonest because it is not true. God knows, and we know, how precariously we are glued together!

It is debilitating because when we are forced to hide our pain and fear, we are forced too to hide the very strands within which compassion can be found. In shared weakness and fear, there is a common meeting ground. Our weakness and fears, much more than our achievements and successes, drive us inward and put us in touch with what is deepest, softest and most worthwhile within the heart. In that part of the heart we discover who we really are and there we understand that we are not what we achieve but what is given to us.

Outside that, when we posture strength and lie and pretend, we learn falsely that life is not a gift to be shared but a possession to be defended. The road to love and intimacy lies in a compassion born out of the perception of shared struggle and shared fear. When we genuinely see another's wound and struggle, then that other enters a deeper, more real part of us.

But it is precisely here that the problem lies. More than anything else, we struggle not to reveal our pain and fears to others, for we have been falsely taught that community and love are grounded upon something else, namely upon impressing each other. Perhaps the greatest obstacle to intimacy and community is that propensity to believe that others will love us only when we are impressive and strong.

Because of this, we go through life trying to impress others into liking us. Rather than sharing ourselves as we really are — vulnerable, tender, struggles, fearful — we try to be so sensational that there can be no possible reason not to love us.

Like the inhabitants of Babel, we try to build a tower that is so impressive that we overpower others. The result for us, as the result then, is counterproductive. Because of pretense, we go through life "speaking different languages," that is, unable to find a common meeting ground upon which to understand each other. Understanding takes place through compassion and compassion is itself the fruit of shared vulnerability.

Thus, as long as we hide our fears and struggles, we will not find intimacy. When fears and struggles are hidden, when achievement, health, attractiveness, and friendship are projected as automatic, then our talents, intelligence, wit, charms, beauty, and artistic and athletic abilities cannot be seen for what they are intended to be, namely beautiful gifts which enrich life.

They are projected, then, as objects of envy and they become forces which create jealousy and further wound.

When there is no shared vulnerability, life becomes what we can achieve, and our talents are possessions to be defended. We must, therefore, admit to each other the cost of struggle. Our real fears must be allowed to surface. Intimacy lies in that.

Intimacy will be achieved only when we are so vulnerable that others can see that we share with them a common condition. Scripture reminds us that here, in this life, we see each other as less than fully real — "as through a glass, darkly, an enigma" (1 Cor 13:12).

We contribute to the enigma, we make ourselves less real, precisely to the extent that we do not admit to each other that it is hard for us. It is only when we see each other's fears and struggles that we become real to each other. The path home, out of exile, lies in vulnerability.

The threads of compassion and a concomitant intimacy will appear automatically when we present ourselves as we really are, without masks.

Sifting through the weeds of Manitoba's pesticide ban

By Natasha Tersigni

For weed control experts around the province, including Rockwood-Rosser weed district supervisor Michael Dola, this year will be a steep learning curve on how to effectively control weeds without using regular synthetic pesticides.

As of Jan. 1, 2015 the Province of Manitoba implemented legislation that requires only federally approved bio-pesticides or low-risk products to be used on lawns, adjoining sidewalks and patios, school grounds, playgrounds and playing fields, and health-care institutions and childcare centre grounds.

While this new law was implemented to reduce the potential side effects that chemical pesticides may have on children, it has left many municipalities scrambling to figure out how to properly address the issue of weed control in urban areas.

"None of the weed supervisors are happy with how this came out, but we are just trying to work through it and we will talk this winter about how it went this year and which direction we want to go," said Dola, who added a major concern now is how to properly control weeds without breaking the bank.

Traditional synthetic pesticides, such as Prelude 240 and Phase III used to control dandelions, are not only cheaper but more effective and less labour intensive. Now weed supervisors are being forced to use a product called Fiesta, a bio-pesticide with the main active ingredient being iron, which costs more and is less effective.

"It is quite expensive. Last year, we had sprayed 240 for dandelion control for $7.35 an acre and we spray that once a year in the fall usually. For Fiesta, you're looking at $500 an acre and it is recommended you spray it two to three times a year. It is costprohibitive to do it," said Dola, who added that a synthetic chemical pesticide such as 240 is more effective at controlling dandelions because it is able to get deeper into the plant and attack the root structure.

"Fiesta just provides leaf control, so all it does is burn the leaves off basically and then the root has so much reserve that it just pushes out new leafs. That is why it is only effective for a couple of weeks at a time, whereas the 240 was good for a minimum of one year, sometimes two, depending on the timing of the application."

The replacement for Roundup, a broad-spectrum systemic herbicide used to kill a variety of weeds, is concentrated vinegar with 20 per cent acidic acid; normal table vinegar is five per cent acidic acid. While the cost per litre is on par with Roundup, the vinegar solution needs to be applied more often than Roundup.

"Roundup is systemic, meaning it gets into the plant and kills it, whereas this is just surface contact where it just burns the leaves on the outside and the results won't be as long. It is cost comparative to the Roundup but you have to apply it more often. It is more costly because you have to do it more often, not because of price per litre," said Dola.

While pesticides are not banned on agriculture land, and if town sites are impacting agriculture fields, synthetic pesticides can be used, but Dola fears this new legislation may have an impact on farmers' fields down the road.

"For example, if there is field next to a town site and the town site is full of dandelions and there is a seed alpha field, which you can't till and your herbicides for the crop there are limited, that would be an exception (to the legislation) and we would be able to spray the town site for dandelions because it is impacting agriculture," said Dola.

"There shouldn't be a major impact, but at the same time there will be more weed seeds blowing around so there could be an impact on agriculture over time just because there will be more weed seeds blowing around from the town sites."

TRIBUNE FILE PHOTO With the new Manitoba legislation banning synthetic chemicals to be used on any type of lawns, Rockwood-Rosser weed supervisor Michael Dola has his work cut out for him this season to try and figure out how to effectively use the costly and labour-intensive bio-pesticides now mandated.

Getting to know your child's cyber usage

By Natasha Tersigni

Three out of five teens have sent or posted nude or semi-nude pictures or videos of themselves; Fifty per cent of teens have been involved in sexually suggestive online or social media chat, while one out of four teen girls and one out of three teen boys have received sexual images in their own inbox that were meant for someone else. These are just a few startling statistics gathered from Manitoba youth that RCMP Const. Gord Olson and his partner, Const. Tracy Santos, presented during the "Parents Should Know" night held at Stonewall Collegiate on May 19.

Olson and Santos are two of the four officers assigned to the province's Internet Child Exploitation (ICE) unit responsible for tracking and investigating child pornography on the Internet. As well, a major portion of their time is spent travelling to schools and educating students, teachers and parents about responsible device usage and how youth can avoid being exploited over the Internet.

The majority of the presentation, which many students in the Interlake School Division have seen before, was highlighting ways that parents can ensure that their child is practising safe habits when using social media sites such as Twitter, Facebook, YouTube, Snapchat, Instagram and Kik, a popular new site among the younger generation.

Knowing your children's usernames and passwords, what sites they are on, and ensuring they have proper security settings and their accounts are not public are a few tips that the constables gave parents to ensure youth won't get into trouble when they are online.

Another important tip Olson passed on was to ensure that teens are aware that anything they post online or text over cellphones can be saved and never erased. This can have negative effects when it comes to applying for a job or post-secondary school.

"Even for the kids as young as Grade 5, it is important for the older ones as well, we want them to know that you will be Googled because everyone has an online presence. Your resume may look great but (employers) want to see what is really going on," said Olson.

"They need to have appropriate pictures on their accounts, for one thing. If their accounts are private and locked down, then all their stuff won't be seen."

Olson also warned students need to know the legal consequences if they choose to send naked or semi-naked images of themselves.

"For girls, if they are under the age of 18 and they have taken a picture of their exposed breasts, exposed vagina or exposed butt, they have made child pornography. If they sent that picture to anyone, they have distributed child pornography, and now whoever has that picture, be it their boyfriend or best boy or whatever the case may be, is in possession of child pornography. And same goes for the boys," said Olson.

"If they go on their device and say'We have been talking for a while. I think we really like each. How about you send me a naked picture of yourself?" That is luring because you are asking that person to make child pornography for you and send it to you so you can be in possession of it."

To ensure parents and their children know the severe consequence of posting illicit images online can have, Santos encouraged all parents to watch the Amanda Todd YouTube video. Todd was a 15 year-old girl from British Colombia who committed suicide after pictures of her flashing a camera were released on social media sites.

"It took about a year before she took that picture and he basically tried to extort her for more. She never sent more, but he took that picture and sent it out to all her friends and family on Facebook. She moved schools three or four times to try and get away from it. All the kids at school were bullying her about it and she couldn't get away," said Santos.

"She ended up turning to drugs and alcohol and thought the only thing she could do was kill herself. But she wanted to help kids out there so they wouldn't get into the same situation, so she went to YouTube and put her story on cue cards."

After her death, the investigation revealed that the 16-year-old boy up the coast of B.C. Todd thought she was talking to was actually a 35-year-old man from Denmark. Olson and Santos told parents an additional resource they can access to learn more information about keeping their child safe online is cybertip.ca. "WE HAVE A LOT

Rams ready for MHSAA fastpitch provincials

By Brian Bowman

The Stonewall Collegiate Rams' fastpitch team may be young, but this group has plenty of talent and may surprise some people at this weekend's MHSAA fastpitch provincials in Boissevain.

"I am really hoping that we are competitive," said Rams' coach Rebecca Brewster last Friday.

"We haven't played a whole lot of other teams to see how we gauge against them but from the look of our girls, I would like to see that we will be competitive." Stonewall punched its ticket to the provincials after blasting Vincent Massey from Winnipeg 11-0 at the inter-zone playoff on May 20.

Stonewall led 5-0 and three innings and then scored six runs in the fourth. The game was called after five innings due to the mercy rule.

Amber Schneider, a talented Grade 9 student-athlete, pitched the shutout.

The Rams earlier beat Fisher River's Charles Sinclair 19-0 in a game that was called after just three innings. The Rams hit the ball well in both lopsided victories.

Brewster is looking forward to seeing how the Rams perform at the provincials. Stonewall is very young, with just three players in either Grade 11 or 12. Still, this team is pretty good.

"We haven't had a lot of games," Brewster admitted. "But the majority of our team is playing A ball, so we realize that they are getting in quite a bit of ball." In fastpitch, pitching is key and the Rams have several good arms. Schneider is expected to get the early start on the mound at provincials but Stonewall has three other very good pitchers in Brielle Cara, Kyra Shewchuk and Tatum Lindley.

"We have good depth in pitching and we have a lot of talented fielders," Brewster noted. "We also like to hit the ball."

The MHSAA provincial schedule had not been finalized at press time.

Rams win Zone 5 banner, lose inter-zone matchup

By Brian Bowman

The Stonewall Collegiate Rams' baseball team found out that the road to the MHSAA provincials isn't as easy as it used to be.

The Rams had their season end last Thursday with an 11-1 loss to the John Taylor Collegiate Pipers in an interzone game in Stonewall. John Taylor led 4-1 after three innings and then broke the game open with five runs in the fourth.

The game was called after five innings due to the 10-run mercy rule.

"(John Taylor's) a good ball team," said Rams' head coach Kyle Nixon. "John Taylor is a team that can make a run at it at provincials. We've seen Altona and Boissevain, who are going to be some of the better teams in high school ball, and I feel they are right there with them.

"(The Pipers) put eight guys out there and a pitcher that have clearly played the game before."

Quin Arsenault scored the Rams lone run, brought in by Ryan Humeniuk. Humeniuk took the loss on the mound for the Rams, going four innings.

With the inter-zone win, the Pipers now advance to the provincials, which will take place May 28-30 in Cartwright/Pilot Mound.

The Rams, meanwhile, will probably have to get used to playing an inter-zone game every year before they advance to the provincials. Simply winning the Zone 5 banner won't get a team an automatic berth to the big dance.

Stonewall won the Zone 5 banner recently with two relatively easy wins over Fisher River (15-2) and Teulon (18-6). The win over Teulon came in the final.

Braden Groot had a good day at the dish against the Saints, cracking a triple early in the game that scored a couple of runs.

Looking ahead, the Rams will lose "about five or six" Grade 12 players from this year's team due to graduation.

"Those are holes to fill but if we could find some younger ball players and kids that can come in and hit the ball a bit, I don't think our team will be any different than what it was this year," Nixon predicted.

Stonewall Blue Jays flying in WSBL

By Brian Bowman

The Stonewall Blue Jays have gotten off to a great start in the Winnipeg Senior Baseball League.

Stonewall improved its record to 2-0 after a wild 11-8 come-frombehind victory over St. Boniface in the Blue Jays' home opener last Sunday.

Stonewall trailed St. Boniface 8-2 in the bottom of the third inning. But the Blue Jays scored three in that inning, one more in the fourth, and then put up five in the fifth.

Newcomer Rory Tycoles had a great game at the plate with three hits, three runs scored, and three RBI while Tyler Tataryn had three hits and two RBI. Nick Drews was 2-for-4 with an RBI and three runs scored while Josh Drews, Orrin Hogue, Adam Kirk, Nevin Kleinsasser, and Ryan Humeniuk also crossed the plate for Stonewall.

Tataryn, a former Teulon Cardinal, threw three scoreless innings in relief and picked up his first win in a Jays' uniform.

Stonewall's defence, meanwhile, was solid all night. Highlights included Josh Drews crashing into the left-field fence to make a terrific catch and Derek McPherson laying out in right center on the dead run.

The Blue Jays opened their WSBL season with a convincing 13-1 road victory over the Springfield Sr. Braves last Thursday.

Stonewall trailed 1-0 after two innings but exploded for 13 runs in the next five innings, highlighted by a five-run rally in the top of the seventh.

Kyle Heroux, Josh Drews and Tataryn each had two hits in the Blue Jays' 10-hit attack. Stonewall's runs were scored by Josh Drews (three), Hogue (two), Nick Drews (two), Tycoles, Dave Craig, Kleinsasser, Josh Stolar, Kyle Heroux, and Tataryn.

Eric Swanson pitched five strong innings - giving up three hits and an unearned run - for the win. He also struck out seven and walked three.

Scott Harris pitched two innings in relief, scattering two hits and a walk to go along with a pair of strikeouts.

The Blue Jays (2-0) will battle the defending-champion Kildonan Mudcats (2-0) tonight at home. First pitch is 7:30 p.m.

Kristjanson wins junior division in Banff

By Brian Bowman

Garrett Kristjanson took in the beautiful sights of Banff at the Maple Leaf Junior Tour CU Classic last weekend.

Along the way, he also won the junior boys' division title.

The talented 19-year-old golfer from Warren ripped up the Fairmont Banff Springs Golf and Country Club course by firing a 74 and 69 for a 36hole 143 total.

"That was my first time breaking 70 in a tournament so I was pretty happy about that," Kristjanson said Monday evening. "It was my second time shooting under par in a round but my first time breaking 70. It was pretty exciting finishing under 70."

That 143 was three strokes better than Lethbridge's Darin Bertschi and four in front of Edmonton's Matthew Jackson.

Kristjanson, who golfs out of South Interlake, said the Banff course is a sight to be seen.

"It's unreal," he said. "It's crazy playing it. The mountains are distracting from a golf game (perspective). I caught myself looking at all of the mountains on every hole but the second day I was a little bit better – more focused on the golf."

The field at the tournament was made up mostly of Albertans. There few a few golfers from B.C. and Saskatchewan, however.

"The competition was similar to Manitoba," Kristjanson noted.

The only other Manitoban in the field was Warren's Josh Hofer. Hofer, 18, carded rounds of 89 and 94 to finish at 183.

Kristjanson, meanwhile, enjoyed a very good collegiate season with the Jackson State Tigers in Mississippi this past year. He won a tournament in Pine Bluff, Ark. with an individual low score of 147. He had rounds of 74 and 73.

"It was windy, so the scores weren't that low," he said, noting his school finished third at the conference championships this season.

Kristjanson's university golf career is starting to take off. His scores should get even lower in the next couple of seasons.

"From last year not playing in a tournament to this year, playing in six out of the seven and leading at the conference championship for our team, was pretty good," he said. "The coach (Eddie Payton, the brother of Chicago Bears' great Walter Payton), said I was the first guy on the team in five years to win a tournament, so that was pretty cool."

Kristjanson has also gotten used to the change from living in Warren to the southern U.S. There aren't too many alligator sightings in the Interlake. And down there, college football is the king.

"It was a pretty big change," he said. "But I've made lots of good friends so it's been pretty easy.

Interlake Invitational track and field stars

Pictured left, Warren's Olivia McCowan placed second in the junior varsity girls' tetrathlon with a score of 1,566 at the Interlake Invitational track meet in Stonewall last Thursday. McCowan also ran the 100-metre dash in 14.25 seconds and the 800-m run in 3:02.14. She also jumped 4.16-m in long jump and threw 6.59-m in shot put. The Rams' Reese Chop jumped 1.35-m, earning her a first-place finish in the junior varsity girls' high jump.

OBITUARY

Clifford Bobby (Bob) Barker

Peacefully and with dignity and courage, Bob passed away on May 11, 2015, at the Stonewall Hospital, with his family at his side.

Bob was born on December 22, 1935 in Oakville Manitoba to Kay and Eldon Barker. He worked on the family farm and attended school in Oakville.

Bob met the love of his life, Joyce, in 1954. They married in July, 1960 and raised their three beautiful children in Winnipeg before moving to Teulon in 1975.

Bob worked at CN Telegraphs, drove truck with his brotherin-law, John Searcy, and later worked as a guard at the Stony Mountain Penitentiary for 29 years until his retirement in 1995. Bob was one of the best competition pistol shooters in Canada for a number of years. He has over 300 trophies to prove it.

After his retirement, Bob and Joyce began the second stage of their life together. They travelled, Bob enjoyed hunting, fishing, golfing and continued to play and watch hockey. They also enjoyed watching their children grow into the wonderful people they are today.

Bob is survived by his loving wife of 55 years, Joyce; brother Frank; children Tracy, Rob (Diane), Doug (Tracy) and his grandchildren whom he loved and adored, Travis, Wesley, Kobie, Brittany (Matthew) and Tyler. There are many nieces, nephews, special friends and other family members, too numerous to name whom he adored.

Bob was predeceased by his parents, Kay and Eldon; his sisters-in-law Audrey, Doreen, Jean, Sylvia and Isabelle. He was also predeceased by his brothers-in-law, Ted and Don, and numerous other family members and friends.

Bob was known for his many sayings and jokes, which are still being told to this day and will live on forever. He had an amazing ability to cook a gourmet meal, and compete in bread making competitions within the family. His desire for cooking will be passed on through the upcoming generations, as Bob called it, THE BARKER SCHOOL OF COOKING.

As per Bob's wishes, cremation has taken place and there will be no formal funeral service. There will be a private family interment at a later date.

A come and go time of reminiscing and stories will be held on Sunday, May 31st, 2015 at the home of Doug and Tracy Barker. All of Bob's friends and family are welcome to attend anytime after 1:00 p.m.

Flowers are gratefully declined, but if people desire, a donation can be made in his memory to: Rick Hansen Foundation (spinal cord injuries) or a Charity of your Choice.

> You may have thought we didn't see Or that we had not heard, The life lesson that you gave to us, But we got every word. Perhaps you thought we missed it all, And that we'd grown apart, But dad, we picked up everything It's written in our hearts. Without you dad, we wouldn't be the people we are today, You built a strong foundation, No one can take away. We've grown up with your values, And we are very glad we did, So here's to you dear father, From your forever grateful kids, wife, family and friends!

Ken had a wonderful, quirky sense of humour and once met he wasn't easily forgotten especially by his friends at the Balmoral coffee shop. After retirement his leisure time was spent playing crib and golfing, enjoying his Wednesday senior league at the Inwood Golf course.

Ken really enjoyed his grandchildren and loved to think up things to do with them. He successfully taught Kale that shovelling sand and snow was fun, not work. Many suppers at Grandpa Ken's house were finished off with vanilla pudding that Ken and Shaelynn were masters at making. Our family would like to express our profound thanks to Dr. Graham, the many people at Stonewall Home Care, Palliative Care, Stonewall Hospital and Manitoba Cancer Care, the caring and compassionate support you provided helped us immeasurably. To our many friends and neighbours your generous support in so many ways made this time so much easier to bear.
