Strawberry fields forever

By Jennifer McFee

A local family is enjoying the fruits of their labour as a bounty of berries crops up on their land.

For the first time this year, the Teichrib family is growing strawberries at Olde Cramb Farm, located just south of Stonewall.

Heather Teichrib said it's a great time to launch their first year since strawberries are so abundant this season.

Although farming is new to the family, they have developed their green thumbs through gardening.

"We purchased land around our home and my husband, Dana, thought of getting into strawberries with the field that we have instead of leaving it bare," Heather said. "He's done a whole lot of work coming home from his business, Interlake Eavestroughing and Siding, and then getting out into the fields. This is the busy season now for our strawberries and for his business."

But Heather has plenty of helping hands from the couple's eight children, who range in age from nearly two to 20. This year, they're picking four acres, and they expect to add another seven acres next year.

"Some of them are little but they're still out there. Whether it's making lunch for everybody or being out in the field, everybody is helping out," says Heather, who homeschools the clan.

"When our kids aren't learning from the books, they're learning on the farm. It's fun and it's all great learning for them — even taking people's money and figuring out how much they owe. They're looking at plants and doing soil tests. It's a real learning experience for us as well."

The kids are also learning valuable lessons about dealing with the public, who come from near and far for the juicy berries that are grown without the use of herbicides and pesticides.

"Right now, we're really enjoying all the people coming and being able to talk to them. Our kids are helping to carry baskets and interacting with people," Heather said.

"As a parent, it's really good to sit back and watch your kids learn to interact so well with people."

Although life is busy right now, they know that the hectic pace will slow down after the seasons change.

"Winter is our time to unwind, which is nice," Heather said."For now, it's very, very busy, but somehow we make it work. We all sleep well."

Olde Cramb Farm is open at 8 a.m. every day except Sundays, when it is closed. U-Pick baskets cost $10 each, and the family is taking orders for pre-picked baskets for $15. Visitors can also enjoy a petting farm featuring animals such as alpacas and silky chickens.

Over 32 members of the red-coated Royal Canadian Mounted Police and their horses will be trotting into Stonewall this August.

These officers will be performing the RCMP Musical Ride.

"The Musical Ride consists of intricate figures and drills choreographed to music, " says the RCMP's official page.

The Ride performs in up to 50 communities across Canada between the months of May and October while raising thousands of dollars for local charities and non-profit organizations.

The Musical Ride provides the opportunity to experience the heritage and traditions of the RCMP. The riders act as ambassadors of goodwill who promote the RCMP's image throughout Canada and all over the world.

The show is set for August 2, and will take place at the South Interlake Ag Society fairgrounds next to the Red Barn. The stop in Stonewall is the only one for the Interlake.

However, the tour will make several stops in Manitoba including the As-

Sergeant Major Marc Godue joined the RCMP in 1982. Godue who originates from Drummondville, Quebec, and served in Stonewall in the mid 80's, has been an instructor with the Musical Ride since 1990 and has been the Riding Master since 2014. Public invited to meetings on Grosse Isle community plan

By Jennifer McFee

The public will have their chance to provide input next week on the community plan for Grosse Isle.

The RMs of Rosser and Rockwood are each contributing up to $15,000 towards a community plan for the Village of Grosse Isle, since it is split between the two communities.

Randall Arendt of Greener Prospects will prepare a concept plan to guide the area's development.

Arendt had previously developed the secondary plan for the Village of Rosser, which Rosser Reeve Frances Smee said was a positive experience for all involved.

"What he does is very interesting. It's called conservation subdivision and he focuses on making really developments that are both environmentally and economically sound," Smee said.

"He designs communities that really conserve farmland while at the same time, he designs developments that ultimately save developers money in terms of street costs, for instance and construction costs."

The approach isn't necessarily new, said Smee, but it is somewhat new for Manitoba.

"He looks at making complete communities. So often now, particularly in the capital region here, we see developments that are just kind of stuck on the edge of a village or a town and aren't integrated into the village," she said.

"Because we live in close proximity to Winnipeg, the draw can often be for people to go back and forth to the city and just use the community as a place to sleep. So we want to design villages and settlement centres that focus in and create a real vibrant community for people to be part of."

Rockwood Reeve Jim Campbell shared similar sentiments.

"If you don't have a plan when

4, council unanimously provided authorization for the mayor and CAO to sign the development agreement for

as prepared by Grantham Law Office. Construction is expected to begin as you're building your community, then velopment area, north of PR 321, that you have no direction and no vision. When years go by, you end up having a bunch of houses beside each other with no flow and no sense of community," he said.

"Randal Arendt he doesn't just design subdivisions; he designs whole communities and whole neighbourhoods that just flow together."

Jessica Manness of JME Consulting will also be involved to deal with engineering issues such as topography, soils, environmental constraints and other factors.

The public can have their say at a series of meetings to be held next week at the Grosse Isle recreation Club.

On Monday, July 11 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Arendt will host a community input session followed by a discussion and PowerPoint presentation.

Then on Wednesday, July 13 from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Arendt will present a sketch of the potential northern deincorporates street layouts, house lots, laneways, parks, greenways and so on.

On Thursday, July 14 from 6:30 to 8 p.m., Arendt will present a sketch of the potential southern development, south of PR 321, along with the previous sketch of the northern development area.

Smee encourages anyone with an interest to attend the public meetings.

"That's a huge part of the process. We involve the landowners who own the land that has potential for development as well as other folks in the community who would have a huge interest in how it gets developed," she said.

"We also involve other people in the municipalities and, on top of that, anybody who has an interest in this is more than welcome to come."

Council is also looking at removing caps for the number of residents living in group homes. Licences would still be required from the province or group homes with five to 15 people, and development permits would be needed for any changes to the building.

Also, licensed home-based daycares would be a permitted use as long as they comply with provincial standards.

The modified zoning bylaw will come back to council for first reading, followed by a public hearing.

Council also accepted town standards for design and construction prepared by WSP Group.

At a special meeting on June 30, council met with representatives from the engineering firm Tetratech and the Water Services Board to discuss the lagoon expansion. Council is aiming to make the lagoon expansion a reality before the end of the current council term, which wraps up in 2018.

Warren golf course expands to include camping

By Stefanie Lasuik

Warren will soon have a new campground. Warren Golf and Country Club owner, Brian Campbell officially got the go-ahead on June 29 to open part of the golf course grounds to tents and campers.

The camping area will be on the south-west corner of the course's grounds. It is located immediately before the parking lot on the right. Campbell figures he could fit 100 tents in the area that already has bathrooms and a horseshoe pit.

Campbell's next step will be getting amenities for camp trailers. He hopes to get them within the next few weeks.

Although final details have yet to be hammered out, Campbell can see the campground bringing both financial and safety benefits to the area.

He's currently working on creating packages that would include golfers' rounds, carts, and camping.

"A family could come out and golf all weekend," said Campbell.

The campground will also work to prevent drunk driving.

"When we have tournaments, people can bring their campers and stay instead of having too many drinks then getting back on the highway," said Campbell.

Campbell bought the Warren Golf and Country Club, previously the South Interlake Golf and Country Club, in March this year. In addition to the name, he's changed the num-

Hi gang, how's it going?

Last Friday I was over at Breezy Point spending an afternoon joking around with the many anglers milling about and met Darren Thiessen from Winnipeg who had an unusual story for us.

Thiessen was fishing with a pal at Otter Falls a few weeks ago in an older boat. When they eventually came in and were going to tie off at the dock, two MCOs approached them and asked to see their fishing licenses. As Darren was dealing with the MCOs his boat began to drift away from the metal dock. With one hand still on the controls he touched the metal dock and immediately became grounded. Electricity flashed through his muscles locking them up in agonizing pain. He could not let go. He screamed for the MCOs to help him but they just stood there dumbfounded. Then the boat heaved and his hand came off the dock. As he sat in the boat trying to regain some feeling in his body the MCOs sheepishly tossed the men's licenses back into the boat and beat a hasty retreat as they wished Darren and his buddy a good day.

Not far from Darren I found Kathy and Raymond Jackson riverbank fishing. Kathy, having overheard Darren and me laughing about his shocking experience and was encouraged to add her little story of when they and her brother Josh were fishing in the Whiteshell, Ray caught a jack and as he hauled it up with great force it slipped from the hook and smacked Josh right in the face.

As Kathy was telling her story she caught a nice big bass, which she held up so I could take a picture for you.

During the weekend I visited the Winnipeg Beach harbor complex where to my amazement shoreline anglers completely filled the north beach fishing, sun bathing and picnicking. My attention was drawn to a couple who lazed in the sun in folding chairs their fishing rods in hand. I trudged through the deep soft sand and struck up a conversation with Randy and Burnadette Carlson who have a cabin at Sandy Hook. Randy, a fit fellow with short cropped salt and pepper hair and beard mentioned that yesterday he was fishing here on the harbor side and caught a pickerel. As he was landing it a huge jack came tearing along just under the surface of the water and clamped onto it. Thinking quickly Randy pulled his rod up high and hard making the jack let go. That pickerel and a few more he caught became supper that night.

On Saturday, just north of Lac du Bonnet at Ponds Lake, I met a chap, Ken Hill, fly fishing. He was a tall, thin brown haired fellow whose manner projected one who believes in detail and accuracy. He wore a high quality weathered anglers' vest and a long peaked cap. He seemed at home here at this trout lake that has become so

Summer reading pays off

Stonewall and Teulon libraries offering prizes for reading

By Stefanie Lasuik

Stonewall and Teulon kids are reading their way to prizes this summer. For the third year, the South Interlake Regional Library is offering toys and treat coupons to kids in their summer reading program.

The program has already begun and runs all summer. Kids can sign up at either branch at any time to start earning library bucks. For every hour children read, they receive ten library dollars, which they can then take to library store.

Once participants finish five hours, they get a ballot for the grand prizes, made up of items like soccer balls, stuffed animals, and books.

The prizes aim to incentivize kids to keep reading during summer so they don't experience summer slide.

Summer slide occurs when students don't read over the summer and lose learning progress they had made during the school year.

"Kids can lose a considerable amount of ability just from stopping the practice," said Stonewall branch librarian, Joan Ransom.

In the Stonewall program's first two years, it saw success. In 2014, 141 kids read 740 hours. Last year, 177 kids read 1,427 hours.

"We almost doubled the hours. It was crazy," said Ransom.

Ransom hopes to get kids to associate the library with fun. She's turning the kids section into a forest, complete with tents, felt fires, and fir trees.

She's also hosting two nights at the library, where kids can come in their pyjamas and play games by the bookshelves. On July 28 and August 25, she'll transform the library into a fun house with obstacle courses and glow bowling. The evening's free activities run from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Parents must pre-register their kids.

This is the second year Stonewall is hosting night at the library. Last year's event was one the participants didn't forget.

Ryan, 6, and Kyle Richen, 11, spent some time in the Stonewall branch of the South Interlake Regional Library on June 30. Ryan hopes to buy a Nerf gun with his library cash.

"Kids talked to me about it all year," said Ransom.

Ransom is also holding free outdoor story times at Archie Gray Park. Younger kids can come and be read to while enjoying songs, crafts, and bubbles. Story time starts at 10:30 a.m. on July 20, August 3, and August 17.

Through these activities, Ransom hopes to build a community of readers.

"My focus here is literacy, getting kids reading no matter what level they're on," she said. A healthy community is made up of healthy, proficient readers, Ransom explained.

Teulon's branch is also hosting dropin activities for kids every Wednesday and Thursday from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Every afternoon will be a new craft or game.

Greene found his Elvis calling in Collingwood

Manitoba Elvis Festival coming to Gimli Aug. 5-7

By Stefanie Lasuik

As David Greene hit the last notes of Elvis Presley's "My Way," the some-3,000 in the Penticton Trade and Convention Centre rose to their feet. The Moosehorn resident may not have looked exactly like the King at the Annual Penticton Elvis Festival, but he sounded like the king.

The judges' marking took into account appearance as well as voice and charisma, and Greene came away with the fourth runner up award.

But for some fans, his performance may not have been the most memorable part of the June 24 to 26 weekend.

After his gospel performance before the finals, Greene invited any of the audience members to come speak with him if they needed someone to talk to.

For an hour and a half, Greene spoke with strangers, hugged them, and gave them reassurance or hope.

This has become Greene's habit. He connects with people when he sings and when he talks with them.

"People open up to you," said Greene. Some have told him stories they haven't told anyone else.

Greene gives them pocket angels, which he places upward in their palms so that they'll later find the message of healing or love written on the bottom.

But on June 26, Greene was out of pocket angels. He gave away crystals from an outfit he had redone instead.

He gave three crystals to a set of twins and their brother, the latter of which had been diagnosed with terminal cancer.

"Make sure you get a nice picture of all of three of you together, happy. And glue those crystals on that picture. Then you'll always be together," he told them.

Greene gave out nearly 300 crystals that day. "That's who I am. I just want to help people,"

David Greene placed fourth in the amateur division of the Penticton Elvis Festival in B.C. over June 24 to 26.

Greene didn't begin as an Elvis tribute artist until he turned his deejaying skills into karaoke. When he moved from Winnipeg to the Interlake, he added songs of all varieties to his playlist. Elvis was one of them, and not a favourite of his growing up.

"It was anything but Elvis," laughed Greene. But after the 300-person crowd at the Arborg Hall erupted during his rendition of "Are you Lonesome Tonight," Greene gave Elvis a little more focus. "They just responded in such a special way," said

Like Elvis, David Greene loves his mother and banana splits. He dedicated a song to all mothers at the Penticton Elvis Festival.

Greene. Elvis was the right key and the right style of music for Greene, he explained.

And although he could hardly make it up the stairs of his first Elvis performance at Collingwood in Ontario, he left bitten by the Elvis tribute bug.

"You feel like a king. It's an unexplainable feeling," said Greene.

Greene travels to all sorts of events as Elvis, including festivals and marital ceremonies. He is now working to organize the Manitoba Elvis Festival at the Gimli Recreation Centre on Aug. 5-7.

Happy Birthday Canada

Many Stonewall residents chose to celebrate Canada Day on the beach this year, making big splashes and flag-filled sandcastles in the spirit of the day.

Beach-goers even heard a rendition of O Canada, as sandcastle contest participants hoped to wow the judges. But in the end, Jayden Ward, Ethan Clayton, Max Prystuba, Dorian Gray, Janelle Clayton, and Ciara Gonzalez won the annual contest with their waterfall castle.

Others celebrated Canada Day at the Quarry Park Heritage Arts Centre, where arts, crafts, and trivia filled the centre with buzz all day. The day was capped off with a magnificent fireworks display.

A line up of cars down Highway 67 showed passers-by that the picking was good at Boonstrs Berries while many left with baskets of red strawberries to match their Canada Day shirts.

Peace Tower flag on display for Canada Day

By Jennifer McFee

It was a special Canada Day for one Stonewall family who saw their Peace Tower flag on display for the very first time.

Ronda Conrad and her husband Tim were visiting Parliament Hill in Ottawa in 2004 when they decided to put their names on a waiting list to receive a flag that flew atop the Peace Tower.

More than a decade later, they received their flag in the mail on September 2015, along with a note indicating that their particular flag had flown over Peace tower on July 22, 2015. Adding to the excitement, 2015 marked the 50th anniversary of Canada's flag.

In total, five flags fly on Parliament Hill, with one over the Peace Tower, one on each side of the Centre Block. one over the West Block and one over the East Block. The Peace Tower flag is changed each weekday and on days that it is at half-mast, except on statutory holidays and during bad weather. The entire process takes between 20 and 30 minutes, since the flag master must take an elevator to the observation deck and then climb 33 metres of stairs and ladders to arrive at the top. Then he lowers the flying flag and raises the new flag up the 10.7-metre pole, being careful to never let either flag touch the ground.

The Conrad family was thrilled to receive their flag in the mail, especially since the waiting period is now 59 years for a Peace Tower flag.

When they put their names on the waiting list, the couple wasn't married yet. Now, 11 years later, they are married with three children: nine-year-old Lindsay, eight-year-old Ashley and four-year-old Morgan.

Since the flag is so large (2.3 metres by 4.6 metres) and etiquette dictates that it cannot touch the ground, the family had never seen their flag fully unfolded — until Canada Day, that is, when it was on display for all to see at Quarry Park.

"It was very exciting for us to see our flag for the first time, all unfolded," Ronda said. "It was a very special moment for our family."

They plan to continue working towards their goal of visiting each province's capital city as well as the associated government buildings.

Harvesting hope for world record later this month

By Jennifer McFee

Local participants are gearing up to help end world hunger while also trying to break a world record for the largest pioneer harvest.

On July 31, more than 100 vintage threshing machines will converge near Austin for an event called Harvesting Hope: A World Record to Help the Hungry.

Jointly organized by the Canadian Foodgrains Bank and the Manitoba Agricultural Museum, the initiative aims to set a new record for the most antique threshing machines to harvest a 75-acre field of wheat with more than 35,000 sheaves.

A steam engine, tractor or stationary engine built between 1890 and 1950 will drive the threshing machines, which are also from the early 20th century.

The goal is to have at least 125 threshing machines for the event, and so far, 118 teams are fully registered. The average threshing cylinder width is 26 inches, combined for a total of 3,120 threshing cylinder inches. The total horsepower will be 4,760, equiva-

The current record was set last year when 111 machines operated at the same time during the St. Albert Curd Festival in Ontario.

Teams are coming from as far as Iowa and Alberta, and 600 volunteers are lending a hand from across the nation. Locally, a threshing crew is expected to come from Komarno and power units are expected to come from Rosser and Stony Mountain.

Lynnette Lindell of Woodlands is looking forward to working with her five-person team made up of other participants from Glenboro and St. Alphonse.

"My dad owns a lot of pre-1960 equipment that he does recreational farming with on his land and that's all we ever used, So I've grown up using that kind of equipment and finding it fun," Lindell said, whose father lives in Eriksdale.

"My dad owns quite a few acres of land and he is always tearing up more land, whether it's canola or barley. He just enjoys it. I just grew up with that as what we do for fun. It's something I really enjoy doing too."

Her friend Wyatt Van Damme of Glenboro is working hard to prepare his 1921 Rumley 22x32 threshing machine, which will be powered with a John Deere 50.

Lindell and her team are already prepared to dress for the time period to keep with the historical theme of the event.

"We're really excited for it. Everyone's got their overalls and their hats. It will be hot, but we're really looking forward to it," she said.

Now with farming equipment, everything is all computerized, so it's kind of fun to do it like the old guys used to do it. It's hard work but it was honest work. We find it enjoyable probably because we don't have to do it all day long."

Celebrating Canada

Canada Day sparked dancing in Teulon. While Country Pride played in Green Acres Park, many took to the stage to two-step and shuffle. When they got tired, Peguis Albert Thompson Memorial Square Dancers took over to entertain the crowd.

Kids with butterflies and Canada flags painted on their cheeks ran in and out of bouncers and onto fire trucks. They stopped at the Six Pines Pets on Wheels petting zoo, fascinated by the sheep, goats and llamas.

The show and shine saw vehicles from a 1952 Chevrolet 1300 to a 2016 Polaris Slingshot, a three-wheeled motorcycle that looks like a futuristic car.

Canada Day celebrators wound down the day with a turkey dinner.

Strong Emotional Reactions a Clue to Something Else

Sometimes we respond to situations in ways that others consider overreactive. We may have very strong feelings that we need to express, only to feel hurt and negated when someone says it's no big deal or tells us to chill out.

If a reaction is indeed out of proportion to the situation, it means that something else is bothering us, or that old emotions are being triggered. If a woman gets angry at her partner and accuses him of being controlling, it may be that she was controlled by her Father (or Mother) and she's had enough. As a child she could do nothing about it, but as an adult she will not put up with it.

A man may feel that his partner is never satisfied. No matter what he does, it is just not good enough. This may upset him deeply if he spent his childhood trying to be "good enough" for his parents, but never succeeded. If one feels that his or her partner has little time to give to the relationship, this may trigger feelings of neglect and abandonment from earlier years.

If one was constantly criticized by parents or siblings, there may be difficulty hearing honest feedback from friends or employers. While we should not have to take the brunt of someone's unresolved feelings, we can try to bring some compassion to the situation.

No one can change the past, but simply feeling understood and supported can go a long way towards healing it. Really listening to the reasons why someone is so upset can allow them to release old hurt. In order to do this we have to set our egos aside temporarily. Generally, showing that we care will defuse another's hurt or anger. Validating their feelings makes things even better. Then you are both in a more positive position to discuss the contentious issue.

Mocking someone, and accusing them of being just like their parent, or of acting out childhood issues is one of the worst things you can do. That would be like abruptly awakening a sleepwalker. If the person is not conscious of the connection with deeper emotional issues, such comments could escalate their emotional reaction dramatically.

In close relationships, you have the power to profoundly assist in healing, but also the power to hurt the individual even more. That is why it is so important to be aware of our own unhealed parts, and those of others. Some will take the stance that they have dealt with their past, and it is no longer an issue in the current relationship.

Unfortunately, past hurt is like radioactive waste, and does tend to seep up into our lives no matter how well we think we have stowed it. It also tends to operate through the unconscious parts of our being, and so we may truly be unaware that it is still affecting us. Strong emotional reactions to current life situations is often a clue that there is something coming to the surface so it can be healed. It's best to tend to that healing before it contaminates our present, and leaks into our future.

Stewart scores big with hockey scholarships

DOPESSION UPSIDE DOWN

By Brian Bowman

Many people would say Eryn Stewart won the hockey lottery recently.

Well, at least the hockey scholarship lottery.

Stewart's parents, Ally and Andy, will have some extra money in their pockets after Eryn was awarded upwards to $50,000 in scholarship money as she prepares for her first season as a student-athlete at Oswego State University (State University of New York - SUNY) this fall.

Within that money, Stewart received a Destination scholarship from Oswego State back in March totaling $36,000 ($9,000 per year) to help cover her room and board.

Then late last month, Oswego also offered Stewart a Dean's scholarship for $1,500 for each of four years.

"This makes it a little easier on my family," said Stewart, who recently graduated from Stonewall Collegiate, last week."These scholarships are for all four years that I'm there, which is nice because it's American money."

As well, Stewart was also awarded a Hockey Manitoba scholarship in the name of Jerry Kruk for $1,000.

Stewart is a pretty smart cookie, averaging around 91 per cent in her classes this past school year. Those marks are even more impressive considering the bevy of sports that she participated in during the course of her high school career.

"I study a decent amount," Stewart said. "I usually force myself to study in the car on the way to hockey. I spend a lot of time on my school work because I care about my marks."

Stewart will leave for Oswego, which is located on the shores of Lake Ontario and is about a 45-minute drive north of Syracuse, in late August. Western New York has a much different vibe than the prairies here in Manitoba but Stewart does have an uncle living in Toronto that she can visit if she gets homesick.

"I hadn't really realized how close (the move is) until I graduated and everyone was, 'Oh, when do you leave?'" she recalled."It made me think that I'm leaving in less than two months now."

Hockey-wise, Stewart will be joining a Lakers' program that reached the semifinals in a very competitive East Coast Athletic Hockey Conference.

"The teams that win the conference, usually win nationals every year," Stewart noted."The top teams in our league typically are the top two teams in the country."

Oswego lost just four seniors due to graduation from last year's team. As well, "one or two" girls have decided not to return to the program.

Stewart is considered by many to be an exceptional defensive forward. She was an alternate captain with Central Plains this past season and was named a co-winner of the Capitals' top defensive player award along with Chloe Snaith.

"In my role with the Caps, I was super defensive but I'm hoping I can be a little more offensive this year," she said.

Stewart will be joining an Oswego team loaded with American-born players. Just three Canadians – one of which was Bailee Goodon from Boissevain – were on last year's Lakers' roster.

In the classroom, Stewart will be aiming for a science degree, with a major in biology. She will soon find out that it is a challenge playing university hockey while studying as a freshman.

"The school choses my courses for me," she explained. "They'll put me in courses for my science degree, but those courses aren't necessarily the

Nationals or bust for South Interlake

Phillies to compete at provincials this weekend

By Brian Bowman

It's nationals or bust this season for the South Interlake Phillies U14 fast-pitch team.

South Interlake will be looking to earn a berth into this year's nationals, which will be played in Winnipeg, by earning spot at this weekend's provincials in Brandon.

Eight teams will be vying for a provincial crown in a seven-team round robin.

"Our expectations are to earn a medal," said Phillies' assistant coach Curtis Fines Tuesday afternoon. "We're ranked fourth but I think we can do it." Fines said the Phillies' pitching this season has been solid, led by the arm of Anna Shewchuk. Pitchers can only throw four innings of a seven-inning game at provincials, Fines noted, so many arms will be needed at provincials.

"Hopefully, her and the rest of the crew can perform because there's lots of innings to chew up when you have to play seven games," Fines said, noting Stu Bremner is the Phillies' head coach.

Offensively, South Interlake's lineup is fairly balanced with some good speed and power from a couple of girls.

"We can play small ball and put it into play and beat out some base hits," Fines said. "And we have a couple (players) in the lineup that can really move some runners around."

The Phillies have played some real good ball this season. South Interlake was 8-7 in the very competitive Manitoba Ladies Super Softball League heading into this past Tuesday's home game with the Thunder.

"It's been an improvement for this group of kids," Fines said, noting the Phillies have eight secondyear U14 players on this year's roster. "It's a tough league, obviously, against some pretty heavy hitters in Winnipeg, Central and Brandon but the girls have played well.

"Being around the .500 mark in the Super League is pretty good."

South Interlake recently suffered a tough 5-4 loss to the Angels at Blumberg on June 28. The Phillies trailed 5-1 in the final inning but Ellen Marshall smacked a three-run home run to pull Interlake to within a run.

Thunder Junior girls strike down Nomads in league final

By Brian Bowman

The wins have been few and far between for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Investors Group Field.

But the Interlake Thunder Junior girls' had no trouble winning there last Thursday.

Interlake capped off a tremendous season with an impressive 19-8 victory over the North Winnipeg Nomads in the league championship game.

"We are just so proud of the girls with the way that they worked (hard) and played," said Thunder head coach Derek Charison."We couldn't be happier."

Zoe Oughton had a tremendous offensive game for the Thunder, scoring three touchdowns. The talented speedster was deservedly named the game's offensive MVP.

"She's normally our running back but that morning our quarterback left for Iceland," Charison explained. "We had a few players playing in different positions that they hadn't played all year."

The Thunder led 12-0 but the Nomads made the game interesting with a touchdown just before the half.

"We were one broken tackle away from pitching a shutout," Charison recalled."They scored on the last play of the first half."

With North Winnipeg gaining some much-needed momentum with that touchdown, Interlake came right back with a TD of their own early in the second half.

Scoring so soon after the Nomads' major was a key point in the game. After that, Interlake's defence was outstanding the rest of the way in shutting down North Winnipeg's offensive attack.

"Our defence didn't break at all," Charison stressed. "With them scoring the way that they did, there were some pretty long faces and some of the girls were pretty hard on themselves.

"But we were able to talk to the girls and get them focused back. The defence was unbelievable all game. They didn't give the Nomads anything and our offence kept chewing the clock away."

The Thunder did a great job the entire game getting off of their blocks, said Charison, and making solid tackles.

The league championship, meanwhile, was a great way for the Thunder to end a great season.

"It was amazing," Charison enthused. "They played fantastic and soaked it all up. They rose to the challenge and it was fantastic. The girls really started to believe in themselves that they could do this."

It was also pretty cool to play on a CFL stadium field.

"When they first went out there, their eyes were big and bright," Charison said. "We talked about it before we went, look around and soak it all in and then get ready to play. They put their game faces on and played really, really well."

The league title should only help the popularity of the Thunder girls' program. Players on the team will probably be able to convince their friends to come out and play football next season.

"Judging by the number of people in the stands (for the final), it was loud and there were lots of friends of (the players) watching, which was fantastic," Charison said.

Celebrating sports excellence at Stonewall Collegiate

By Stefanie Lasuik

Stonewall Collegiate honoured their best and brightest athletes on June 28 at their annual sports banquet. Eryn Stewart, Curtis Beck, Amber Schneider, and Scott Yeo highlighted their respective classes to win the school's athletes of the year awards.

Earning Athlete of the Year is about more than sporting prowess. The deserving students have to exemplify dedication to academics and community as well.

This year's top four athletes held a combined 88.5 per cent average as well as numerous leadership awards between them.

Eryn Stewart, already having won the Interlake School Division General Proficiency Award at her graduation ceremony on June 25, scooped up the Varsity Girls Athlete of the Year award. Stewart was the MVP for soccer, basketball, and track and field team. She collected 34 points in 60 games this season with the Central Plains Capitals in the Manitoba Female Midget Hockey League and has committed to Oswego State University for the fall. While there, she plans to complete a four year science degree with the goal of becoming a speech pathologist. "It's super special," said Stewart of her third Athlete of the Year award.

"I'm glad that I did everything that I did," said Stewart, who would race from her school sports to hockey practices. She'd get home at 11 p.m. some nights, then be up for a 7 a.m. basketball workout.

"Every competition was important to her and she always played until the final buzzer no matter the score," said her basketball coach, Christy Steeves. Stewart led on and off the court, ice, and field.

She was a member of the Link Leader and Peer Tutoring programs, and captained her basketball team for the past three years.

"She was a kid who led her team by treating everyone as an equal but wasn't afraid to step up and tell them they need to work harder," said Steeves.

Curtis Beck earned the Varsity Boys Athlete of the Year award. Beck played for the school's hockey, badminton, baseball, and track teams. He was one of the baseball team's top players who carried the team offensively, said baseball coach, Kyle Nixon.

But it was Beck's defensive skills that made him the hockey team's MVP. As the goalie on a low-scoring team, Nixon expected him to grow frustrated, but Beck never did.

"He was positive, a leader... Without Curtis Beck, this season would have been a long one," said Nixon.

Beck was also a leader in the school. He previously won a student of the year award and several scholarships for his devotion and excellence in sport and school.

"He's a role model in the classroom and at our school and as much as he leads on the ice, he treats everyone in this building the same way," said Nixon.

Beck plans to attend the University of Winnipeg next year to complete a science degree before going into pharmacy.

The Junior Varsity Girls and Boys Athletes of the Year were Amber Schneider and Scott Yeo. Yeo collected the track, basketball, cross country, and varsity volleyball MVP medals. Yeo also led his golf team and placed second in singles at Zones badminton.

"He's truly one of SCI's finest," said physical education teacher Derrick Wall.

Yeo hopes to bring Stonewall home some hardware from next year's provincial volleyball tournament.

Schneider earned the MVP award in track, basketball, and cross-country, where she placed second in the province. She set for the school's volleyball team and won Zone 5 honours on her mixed doubles badminton team. Outside of school, she excels on the provincial softball and track teams.

"Her individual honours are endless," said Curtis Grieve.

The SCI Rams Award went to Krista Dupras for her passion and dedication to school sports. Dupras was a hard worker and supportive teammate on her soccer, cross-country, marathon club, volleyball, basketball, and track and field teams.

Warren Wildcats win PeeWee 'AA' regionals

By Brian Bowman

The Warren Wildcats were clearly the best team at the Merv Farmer Memorial Regional PeeWee "AA" baseball championships.

Warren won the regional title on June 29 after a convincing 16-2 win over Stonewall.

"The guys were really excited," said Warren coach Mike Tataryn. "The young guys weren't sure what to expect in the final and the other guys kept their noses to the grindstone and everything came together."

Warren was fantastic on offence throughout the regionals with everyone in the lineup contributing.

"Our bats were getting stronger and stronger as we went through the tournament," Tataryn said. "Everyone in the lineup (was hitting), as opposed to the start of the year when the top of the order carried us through."

Warren reached the final after cruising to a perfect 3-0 round-robin record. The Wildcats started the regionals with a lopsided win over Lundar on June 24 and then blanked Stonewall 15-0 the following morning.

Warren then closed out their round robin by defeating Balmoral 13-1.

As good as Warren's offence was, however, their pitching and defence was real good, too.

"We're blessed with a really good pitching group," Tataryn noted. "We had real good pitching and defence throughout the tournament."

To prepare for the regionals, Warren played their league games and had entered some tournaments, but most, said Tataryn, were rained out. That meant the Wildcats, who had a real good mix of first- and second-year PeeWees, practiced quite a bit and got much better over several weeks.

"We did a lot of work on batting and a lot of work on defensive play and grounders and situational plays," Tataryn explained.

The Wildcats will need to be good in all of those areas when they head to Steinbach for the PeeWee "AA" Provincials from July 15-17. Warren will be one of many real good teams vying for a provincial title.

"I think we'll compete, but it will be a lot tougher," Tataryn admitted. "We'll see a lot stronger pitching from other areas. Some of our younger

Blue Jays split pair of games last week

By Brian Bowman

The Stonewall Blue Jays had mixed results on the diamond last week.

Stonewall finished the week with a 1-1 record after suffering a 9-2 loss to the Elmwood Giants last Thursday at Koskie Field in Winnipeg.

The Blue Jays scored their runs in the first and third innings.

Elmwood's offence was clicking all night, scoring runs in five of their six at bats while banging out 13 hits.

St. Clements' Colten Boudreau led Elmwood with three hits, three runs scored, and three stolen bases.

On June 28, the Blue Jays doubled the St. James A's 6-3 in Winnipeg.

Stonewall scored a run in each of the first and second innings and then added two runs in both the fourth and sixth innings. St. James scored all three of its runs in the bottom of the sixth.

The Blue Jays were swinging the bats real well in the win, belting out 17 hits. Kyle Heroux and Adam Kirk led Stonewall with three hits apiece. Josh Stolar, Kyle Turner, and Rory Tycoles each had two hits.

Turner also scored two runs for Stonewall while Stolar, Kirk, Matt Benn and Tyler Paul also crossed the plate safely.

Scott Harris pitched seven complete innings, surrendering just six hits and two earned runs, for the win. He also recorded seven strikeouts.

The Blue Jays visited the Kildonan Mudcats this past Tuesday and then hosted St. James last night but no scores were available at press time.

Stonewall will then play the St. Boniface Legionaires next Tuesday at Whittier Park in Winnipeg.

First pitch is 7:30 p.m.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
